SANT' ANNA IS SAFE; SHIP WHICH WAS AFIRE PROCEEDING TO AZORES

Fabre Liner Was Ablaze 960 Miles Southeast of Halifax—Has 1600 Italian Reservists Aboard.

FIRES RECENTLY FOUND IN OTHER VESSELS OF SAME LINE

New York Agent Thought Report Might Be Due to Finding of Flames in the Fordney Last Wednesday—Sant' Anna Searched for Bomb Before Her Departure.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The Fabre line steamship Sant' Anna, which was on fire in midocean, is safe and proceeding under escort to the Azores, according to a wireless message received at the line's local office today.

The message was from the captain of the Sant' Anna and came via Cape Race. It read:

"Fire in hold two. Frie is out. Proceeding to Azores, escorted by Ancona."

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The local offices of the Fabre Line received no word up to noon, today regarding their steamer Sant' Anna, bound from New York for Italian ports with more than 1600 Italian reservists and a large cargo of foodstuffs, which had been reported on fire about 960 miles southeast from Hallifax, N. S., in a wireless message received at the latter point late last night.

The message said: "Steamer Sant' Anna in distress, on fire and in need of assistance. Position latitude 40.23 north; longitude 47.30 west."

At the offices of James W. Elwell & Co., New York agents of the Fabre line, it was stated today that the Aconda of the same line, which sailed from here last Wednesday afternoon, is following the same steamship track as that taken by the Sant' Anna and should now be only a few hours behind her.

D. H. E. Jones, senior partner of Elwell & Co., said he was at a loss to understand why Capt. Francois Pavey of the Sant' Anna had not communicated with the office here if his ship were actually on fire.

"It is possible that the fire which occurred on the Joseph W. Fordney, one of the firms' American ships, was responsible for the message regarding the Sant' Anna," said Jones. The Fordney, a freighter, sailed from Archangel, Russia, Aug. 18, for New York. Last Wednesday a fire was discovered in one of her holds and she put into St. Johns, N. F. The ship sailed yesterday for New York.

The Sant' Anna sailed from New York Sept. 8 for Naples, Genoa and Marseilles with 17 first-class, 44 second-class and 1785 steerage passengers. With few exceptions all of the steerage passengers were Italian reservists who had come to New York from all parts of the United States.

The manifest of the Sant' Anna shows that her cargo included 4995 boxes of provisions, 2174 barrels of cottonseed oil, 1000 bags of paraffine wax, 16 cases of potash salts, 2340 bags of refined sugar, 18 cases of machinery and various amounts of iron pipe, copper wire and brass.

Several Vessels on Fire Recently.

"Several of our vessels have been set on fire recently," said Howard F. Jones of the firm. "We have had the vessels under the closest kind of watch while in port and no Germans or Austrians were permitted on the pier. We examined every piece of freight offered as cargo to guard against bombs and infernal machines."

It was said today that the sailing of the Sant' Anna from this port was delayed 24 hours to permit a thorough search because the suspicions of her officers had been aroused by rumors that a bomb had been placed aboard.

Canada Prepares Relief Ship.

The message from the Cape Race wireless station as received here via Halifax, was flashed abroad on the Atlantic and was picked up by vessels within easy call of the steamer in distress. It was understood here today, however, that the Canadian Government was preparing to send a relief ship from Halifax, unless word should be received today that aid had reached the Sant' Anna from other sources.

As the steamship was on the southern route for the Mediterranean, she was far from the more traveled path, further north, used by vessels plying between New York and Great Britain. She was due at Naples, her first stop, Sept. 18 or 19.

The Sant' Anna is a steel twin-screw steamship of 5814 tons. She is 510 feet long and has been engaged in transatlantic freight and passenger service for several years. Capt. Pavey, who is in command of the ship, is one of the oldest skippers in the service of the line.

Fire was discovered in No. 3 hold of the Sant' Anna Sept. 21, 1914, when she was lying at her pier at South Brooklyn. All the goods in that hold were destroyed by fire and water and the loss was estimated at $100,000. The steamer was not injured, it was said. Capt. Pavey attributed the fire to spontaneous combustion. The commander of the ship asserted that the lower hold had been battened down since the vessel left Genoa.

A tragic incident aboard the Sant' Anna early in May last was the suicide of Frederick Van Dyne, United States Consul at Lyons, who was returning to his post from his home in Washington.

BANKS SEND OUT WARNING OF NEW $5 COUNTERFEIT BILL

Banks today issued printed warnings to their customers to be on guard against a counterfeit $5 silver certificate, which is said to be dangerous because of the excellence of the workmanship.

The National Bank of Commerce already has discovered 12 of the bills among moneys tendered for deposit. Other banks also have reported finding several.

MONEYED MEN OF WEST FAVOR BIG LOAN TO ALLIES

J. J. Hill Says Flotation of Credit Is of More Vital Interest to U. S. Than to Borrowers.

TO PAY FOR GRAIN ALSO

Festus J. Wade of St. Louis Expected to Confer With Anglo-French Commisssion Today.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Financiers of the West and Northwest came to New York today to lend a helping hand to the Anglo-French financial commissioners in their task of arranging a way by which Great Britain and France can pay for the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of imports which were shipped abroad and other vast amounts contracted for and contemplated.

The first of these arrivals was James J. Hill, railroad builder and financier of St. Paul. Hill was said to be provided with data upon which he based his belief that the flotation of a mammoth credit loan here to Great Britain and France is of more vital interest, perhaps to the United States, than to the two countries seeking the loan.

Funds for Payment for Grain.

"Any loan that is arranged," Hill said, "must cover not only credit for munitions of war, but provide funds for the payment of grain and other commodity exports. If the loan were intended to be used only for the payment of war munitions it would not in my opinion meet with general response in the West and Northwest. On the other hand, a credit loan intended for use in paying for all commodities shipped to the two countries would be popular in my sectin and there is every indication that even the smallest Western bank would give it their heartiest support."

Festus J. Wade of St. Louis also registered here today. It was said that Wale would probably see members of the committee late today.

The commission, it was understood, was not all heartened by the result of the preliminary canvass of financial institutions throughout the country a few weeks ago. This canvass showed, according to reliable reports, that not more than $100,000,000 or $150,000,000 could have been subscribed toward the proposed foreign credit loan at that time. The minimum amount sought by the commission is $500,000,000. Recently the talk has been of a $1,000,000,000 loan. Besides these figures, the amount totaled as a result of the preliminary canvass appears pitifully small.

Welcomed by Commission.

Aid, therefore, from out-of-town financiers and a general realization of the close communion between the establishment of the credit and continuance without check of the great volume of American exports, were welcomed by the commission and local financiers alike. The sentiment voiced in Wall street today was that the time had come for the bankers of the country and everyone else interested in the continuance of American prosperity to help the commission in accomplishing its task.

The commission cloaked its movements today and even its whereabouts with secrecy. It was said that a meeting was being held, but where or with whom was not divulged.

BIBLE STUDY IN HIGH SCHOOL

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13.—When students of the Wyoming (O.) High School start to school Wednesday, they will carry among their text books the old family Bibles.

The Wyoming Board of Education added Bible study to the regular curriculum as a result of a campaign of the Cincinnati Federation of Churches. Wyoming is a suburb of Cincinnati. This is the first time the experiment has been tried in this part of the country.

U. S. ACTION AS TO DUMBA DISPLEASES AUSTRIAN EMPEROR

Vienna Press Indicates That Incident Has Divided Statesmen Into Two Factions.

MUCH INTEREST IN BERLIN

German and Austrian Foreign Ministers Said to Have Exchanged Sharp Telegrams.

By Associated Press.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 13.—The Vienna morning newspapers are replete with leading articles on the news concerning Dr. Dumba. From these articles it would appear that the request for his recall has divided Austro-Hungarian statesmen into two camps. Those of the party of Baron Burian, the Foreign Minister, apparently are persuaded that Ambassador Dumba acted under the influence of Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador to the United States, without orders from the home Government. The Hungarian party, on the contrary, believes that Dr. Dumba did his duty in order to prevent arms and ammunition reaching the Powers of the quadruple entente.

It is gleaned from the newspaper articles that Emperor Francis-Joseph was displeased when he learned of the action that had been taken by the United States in the case of the Ambassador, and that in substance he expressed the views that the personality of the Austrian Ambassador was a sufficient guarantee against statements attributed to him by the United States which were without a solid basis in fact.

It is declared that telegrams of somewhat bitter tone were exchanged on the subject between Foreign Minister Burian and Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Chancellor. The German Emperor is declared to have been greatly interested in the development and to have recalled Foreign Minister von Jagow to Berlin, the Foreign Minister having been preparing on Saturday to go to Vienna.

The question of diplomatic ruptures with the United States is being discussed by the papers.

U. S. AGENTS WILL MEET ARCHIBALD

Department of Justice Acts on White House Instructions in Case of Messenger.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Acting under instructions from the White House, agents of the Department of Justice will meet James F. J. Achibald, the American correspondent involved in the case of Dr. Dumba, the Austrian Ambassador, when he lands at New York on the steamer Rotterdam from Holland. Archibald carried Dr. Dumba's letter to the Vienna Foreign Office disclosing plans to cause strikes in American munitions plants.

All officials here are maintaining strictest silence regarding Archibald's case, but it became known today that United States Attorney Marshall at New York has been given instructions to investigate the case by the Department of Justice, which takes the view that there is ground for considering whether Archibald violated a Federal law. The question of whether he actually knew the contents of the papers he carried probably will be the deciding factor in whatever action the Government ultimately takes toward him.

The statute on which the Government is proceeding fixes a fine of not more than $2000 and imprisonment of not more than three years for its violation.

Case of Capt. von Papen.

There was no indication today of any further move by the Government in the case of Capt. Franz von Papen, military attache of the German embassy, for whom Archibald also carried a letter and who was mentioned in Dr. Dumba's report as being connected with the strike plans.

At the German embassy it was said no intimation had been received from the State Department that Capt. von Papen was persona non grata but that the embassy, of course, would accede to any request the United States might make in his case. All that was asked was a safe conduct for the Captain back to Germany. If the United States decided that Capt. von Papen's connection with the Dumba case made his presence in this country undesirable, it would only be necessary, according to diplomatic procedure, to indicate that view to Ambassador von Bernstorff, his chief, and communications between Washington and Berlin would be unnecessary.

In the event that Dr. Dumba's recall is accompanied by an announcement that Austria will not appoint an Ambassador to succeed him but will place a charge at the head of the embassy staff indefinitely, the administration might interpret such action as a slap at this Government and instruct Ambassador Penfield at Vienna to take a "leave of absence."

Once before in the history of our foreign relations the dismissal of a foreign Minister was the cause of resentment which for a time was indicated in this way. In 1809, F. J. Jackson, British Minister to the United States, incurred the displeasure of Secretary of State Smith, under President Madison. His recall was asked for and he himself notified the United States that no further

Two Insurance Men Held in Arson 'Promotion' Investigation

JULIUS BERSCH

HERBET O. BAKER

MRS. GOWDY SAYS MARRIED WOMAN SPOILED ROMANCE

Widow Suing H. C. G. Luyties for $250,000 Replies to Interview of Manufacturer.

Mrs. Kathleen E. Gowdy, a widow, who has filed a $250,000 breach of promise suit against Herman C. G. Luyties, 38 Portland place, president of the Sanitol Chemical Co., in reply to an interview given Saturday to a Post-Dispatch reporter by Luyties, declared this morning that her romance was broken up by a married woman.

In his interview Luyties told of yielding the hospitality of his Portland place home for three weeks to Mrs. Gowdy and her sister, the Marchioness de Janelli, but denied there was any betrothal between them.

The blonde widow vivaciously told of what she said was Luyties' courtship of her in his own home. She never doubted, she said, that they were to be married, although she was somewhat surprised at Luyties' apparent willingness to postpone the wedding.

She declared Luyties told her he could not arrange to be married before September of this year and suggested that she go to New York and later meet him in Cleveland, whence they would depart on a long automobile tour.

"Then one evening he came home," she declared, "and said he had been greatly worried by a married woman with whom he had been acquainted for five years. He told me this woman wanted to get a divorce and marry him, but that he had refused to sanction such an arrangement."

Mrs. Gowdy said that Luyties finally refused flatly to marry her. After that, according to her story, the "hospitality" of the Luyties home was withdrawn.

The widow said Luyties wished to send her and the Marchioness to the Jefferson Hotel in his automobile, he having often expressed the idea that it was plebeian to use the street cars. She declares she and her sister refused and went to the hotel in a street car. Mrs. Gowdy and her sister were Luyties' house guests for two weeks last May and a week in June.

The sisters are still stopping at the Jefferson. Luyties was not at his home when a reporter called to ask him to discuss what Mrs. Gowdy had said.

PRESIDENT SAYS HIS THOUGHTS ARE MORTGAGED NOW

Dares Not Let Them Wander From International Affairs, He Tells Delegation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—President Wilson expressed his view of the gravity of the international situation which confronts the United States to a delegation of Virginians who asked him today to visit the Manassas battlefield late this month.

"We are all hoping and praying that the skies may clear," said the President, "but we have no control of that on this side of the water, and it is impossible to predict any part of the course of affairs."

The President was reminded that some time ago he had promised to go to Manassas to dedicate a tablet.

"When I made that promise," the President told the delegation, "things were just beginning and a great many things have happened since which have altered not only the aspect of our own affairs but the aspect of affairs of the world. My experience here day by day is that questions turn up so suddenly and have to be handled so promptly and sometimes with so much thoughtful discretion that I really dare not let my thoughts go out to other matters.

"I could not go to Manassas without having something to say. It would not be worthy of the occasion if I did not make preparations that would be worth the while and that is out of the question. My thoughts are mortgaged beyond recall for the present.

"I simply feel that I have forfeited my liberty for the present and that my nearest duty is the most obvious and imperative duty. I have been obliged to say this to all invitations of however tempting a character and I would not be worthy of your trust if I did not come to such a conclusion, because I know that you want these international matters taken care of as best we know how and I ought not to send my thoughts afield."

GERMAN INVENTOR KILLED

BERSCH HELD IN ARSON INQUIRY; BAKER TAKEN TO CIRCUIT ATTORNEY

Had Given Bond to Answer any Charge Resulting From Inquiry Into Incendiary Fire "Promotion".

PRINCIPAL WITNESS IS AN EMPLOYE OF BERSCH

Six Arrests Have Been Made and Police Are Hunting for Another Person; Detective Says Circuit Attorney Has Stenographic Report on Insurance Conversations.

Julius R. Bersch of 5847 Von Versen avenue, vice president of the Bersch Fire Insurance Agency Co. in the Pierce building, was arrested this morning, in the Municipal Courts building, just after he had given a $2000 bond, in Judge Cave's court, to answer any charge which might result from the inquiry, by the police and the grand jury, into the business of "promoting" incendiary fires.

He was taken to police headquarters, photographed and measured, and was then taken to the circuit attorney's office. He was the sixth man arrested, the others being Herbert O. Baker of Webster Groves, an employe of Bersch's office, and four men who were caught hauling gasoline to a factory.

Bersch's arrest was a surprise, as he had voluntarily given a preliminary bond of $1000 yesterday, in the effort to avoid being taken in custody. This bond, as well as Baker's $1000 bond, was doubled in Judge Cave's court this morning, at Circuit Attorney Harvey's request. The bonds of the four men charged with being "torches," or active incendiaries, Max and Morris Greenberg, Ben Milner and Michael E. O'Connell ("Split" Connors), were continued at $1000 each.

On reaching the Circuit Attorney's office, Bersch was required to give a new bond, in the amount of $2000, which superseded his bond for the same amount, given shortly before. He was then released. This made it appear that the formality of arrest was not, as at first supposed, for the purpose of an extended questioning of Bersch by Chief Allender or the Circuit Attorney at this time, but only to get his photograph and a police record of a formal arrest.

Baker was taken to Circuit Attorney Harvey's office at noon, to be questioned as a preliminary to his appearance before the grand jury, later in the week.

Baker was later taken by Harvey and John S. Leahy, attorney for insurance companies, to the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. After a conference with officials of the trust company, Baker and Harvey went to the safe deposit vaults, and Baker took out the 18 insurance policies of the Christen Bellows Manufacturing Co., at whose plant an incendiary fire was planned for last Saturday. Harvey took these policies as evidence, and he and Leahy then took Baker to an office in the National Bank of Commerce Building for further questioning.

Baker Talks Freely.

Baker, who is tall and slender, with pointed features, talked freely with Leahy and Harvey. He was wearing a blue suit, with a Bangkok straw hat. He is 28 years old, is unmarried, and is a member of a family highly respected in Webster Groves. He is a member of the First Congregational Church there. His father, C. O. Baker, a realty dealer, was trying this afternoon to qualify as the signer of his increased bond.

Baker was followed by detectives wherever he went, and other detectives watched Bersch's insurance office.

Bersch appeared in court at 10 o'clock with his brother, Arthur Bersch, and his son, Robert. He furnished the increased bond, with Chris Schawacker as bondsman, and remarked, in answer to reporters' questions, that he would prove his innocence in due time. He wore a blue suit, with sky-blue tie, and carried himself in a self-possessed manner.

Willing to See "the Chief."

As Bersch and his brother were entering an elevator with Bersch's lawyer, A. M. Frumberg, Detective Hannegan told Bersch that "the Chief" wished to see him. Frumberg protested, saying his client had given bond, but Bersch said he was willing to go with Hannegan, whom he has known for years.

Circuit Attorney Harvey said that the alleged conspiracy to burn the Christen plant, 121 Dock street, which was thwarted by four arrests Saturday afternoon, would come under the head of third-degree arson. The punishment for this crime ranges from a 12 months' jail sentence to life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

According to Detective Bart Keaney, who has been in charge of the Detective Bureau's arson investigations for six years, the Circuit Attorney has stenographic reports of two conversations held by Bersch and Baker with Joseph C. Christen, secretary of the Christen Co., on the subject of increasing his insurance, as a preliminary to a fire. The Christen plant's insurance was increased to $35,100 before the intended fire, the last $11,000 being within the week.

Baker Principal Witness.

Baker, who lives at 326 Rosemont avenue, Webster Groves, and who was arrested Saturday evening, is now the principal witness in the arson promotion cases. The police say he has told them that he had a part in arranging two such matters, the first the fire in the Gilmore-Bonfig Decorating Co., 4626 Olive street, July 24 last, and the second the intended fire in the Christen bellows plant, which was to have been burned last Saturday evening.

Through the co-operation of Christen with the authorities, the plot was made known, and a partial record obtained in the form of evidence. The four alleged "torches," or active incendiaries were arrested as they were unloading four barrels of gasoline at the place Saturday afternoon.

Chief of Police Young said that, following a full confession from Baker, the police are looking for another man.

Bersch Firm Asks for Injunction to Keep Police Out of Office

BERSCH'S Insurance Agency Co. this afternoon filed suit for an injunction against the Police Board and officials of the Police Department, asking that they be forbidden to interfere with the firm's business. The petition alleges that policemen took charge of the company's office, kept customers out and refused to permit the carrying on of business.

It is also alleged that the police took control of 15 desks, 14 file cabinets and three safes, and showed a purpose to open them. This, it is alleged, would be in violation of the State Constitution, which insures citizens against "unreasonable seizure and search."

GERMAN GAINS CONTINUE AT ALL POINTS IN RUSSIA

Kaiser's Troops Take 6500 Prisoners in Several Engagements in Which Villages and Fortified Positions Are Captured.

Russians Continue to Push Back Austrians Near Tarnopol in Galicia With Aid of Armored Autos.

German Submarines Appear Near Crimean Coast and Are Pursued by Torpedo Boats and Seaplanes.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, via London, Sept. 13.—The battle along the Dvina River, which has been virtually in a state of deadlock for several days, has swung in favor of the Germans. The War Office announced today that the Russians had been ejected from several points on the left bank of the river. This battle probably will decide the fate of Riga.

BERLIN, via London, Sept. 13.—Further progress for the German troops at various points along the battle line in Russia is recorded in the official statement issued yesterday. The communication says:

"Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: On the front between Duna and Mercz, on the Niemen, the fighting at various points assumed greater proportions, 1800 prisoners and five machine guns being taken. Between Jeziory and the Niemen stubborn battles lasted throughout the day and only this morning did the enemy cease his resistance. He is being pursued. On the Zelwianka the enemy lines have been broken through at several points. The enemy lost 17 officers and 1946 men taken prisoners, as well as seven machine guns.

"Army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria: These troops are in close cooperation with the right wing of the army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg. Enemy positions south of Zelva were taken. Near Kossele the Zelwianka has been crossed. On both sides of the Bersha-Kartushka-Kossow-Slonim road the enemy has been driven back. This army group took 3759 prisoners and 11 machine guns.

"Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: Attacking on both sides of the railway to Pinsk, some advance positions were taken by surprise during the night.

"In the Southeastern theater: German troops, in conjunction with others, repulsed further attacks with severe loss to the enemy."

NAVAL BATTLE IN THE ADRIATIC

ROME, Sept. 13.—A battle between Italian and Austrian naval forces, the former assisted by a French submarine, occurred Thursday in the Adriatic Sea. The Ministry of Marine announced today that one Austrian torpedo boat had been damaged seriously. The statement follows:

"The French submarine Papin, assisted by our naval forces, torpedoed on Sept. 9, in the Adriatic near Cape Planka, a group of Austrian torpedo boats, one of which was damaged seriously."

Russians Pursue German Submarines Near Crimean Coast.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 13.—Russian torpedo boat destroyers and seaplanes have been sent in pursuit of German submarines operating near the Crimean coast, in the Black Sea, according to an official statement issued at the War Office.

The War Office also says that because of the salient of the armies on the Niemen it has been decided to retire a short distance, still holding back the Austro-German offensive.

"In the region of Tarnopol, Galicia," the statement says, "the engagements have been favorable to the Russians. North of Tarnopol, we captured Saturday 91 officers and 4300 men, including Germans, nine machine guns and much booty in repulsing enemy attacks in which the Austrians suffered heavy losses despite the fact that they received considerable reinforcements. Here the enemy emitted a smoke cloud to the extent of two versts (a mile and a third).

"In the fighting north of Tarnopol our troops derived great advantage from the employment of armored automobiles.

"Sunday morning our troops south of Tarnopol too the offensive. On the Sereth River the Austrians continued their retirement from the region of Fiusta towards the Dniester. Our pursuit continues successfully; we have captured many prisoners."

Kaiser Said to Have Dismissed Commander in Galicia.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam says:

"Emperor William has dismissed Gen. von Kluege, commander of the Eighth Division, who was held responsible for the Austro-German check by the Russians on the Sereth River in East Galicia. Gen. von Kluege, according to the German newspapers, retired from the service at his own request and with a pension."

Zeppelins Raid English Coast, but No Casualties Occur.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Another Zeppelin raid was made over the east coast of England last night. There were no casualties.

Zeppelins dropped bombs on the east coast Saturday night, but an official statement says there were no casualties and no damage was caused.

JOSEPH C. CHRISTEN TELLS HOW TRAP WHICH RESULTED IN ARSON ARRESTS WAS SET

Manufacturer Says That Witnesses Overheard Baker's Offer to Burn Plant and Later Conversation With Bersch.

Joseph C. Christen, secretary and executive head of the Christen Bellows and Manufacturing Co., gave to a Post-Dispatch reporter a detailed account of how he set the trap which resulted in the arrest of Julius R. Bersch, vice president of the Bersch Insurance Agency, and Herbert O. Baker, a solicitor for the Bersch company, in connection with a plot to burn Christen's factory for the insurance.

"Baker had been handling my insurance for about five years," said Christen. "He often came to my office on what seemed to be merely friendly calls. About eight months ago he visited me at the office, and after talking on general topics for awhile, he said: 'How is your business?'

"I told him business was very poor and he said: 'Why don't you sell it?'

"I laughed and said I didn't know of anybody I could sell it to, as times were bad.

"'Why don't you sell it to the insurance companies?' Baker said. 'Big men all over the city are doing it every day. The truth is that the insurance companies don't mind a big loss once in a while. It helps to advertise the business.'

Told Others of Remark.

"A few days later Dan Kelly of the Fire Prevention Bureau was at the factory to make an inspection of the plant. He pointed out several things as being dangerous in case of fire. I said to him: 'Dan, it's funny to have you find fault with little things like that when the insurance companies are offering to burn me out.' I didn't mention Baker's name or give him any details. Kelly did not seem to take my remark seriously and we talked no more about it.

"In the next few days I spoke of the matter to several other persons, including insurance men, but they all seemed to think I was joking.

"About seven weeks ago John A. Leahy, a lawyer in the National Bank of Commerce Building, came to me and said: 'Christen, I heard about what you said as to an offer to burn your plant, and I thought it was a fairy story. Now, insurance companies which are my clients lost heavily on a recent fire and I have got permission to look into your story.'

"Leahy and I consulted Ben C. Applegate of the Furlong Detective Agency and the three of us went to see Circuit Attorney Harvey and asked him how far I could go in seeming to fall in with the plans of the plotters. Harvey said I might go as far as I liked.

Says Proposal Was Repeated.

"About a week later—I think it was six weeks ago—Baker called at my office on a Saturday afternoon. He asked me how business was and I replied: 'It is still bad. I believe I'll have to take up your offer after all.'

"'If you are ready to talk I'll take it up with you any time,' said Baker. I remarked that there were several men around the plant that afternoon and it would be best for him to come there the following Saturday.

"I then had a talk with Detective Bart Keaney. He decided it would not be practicable to use a dictograph because trains passing the factory made too much noise.

Stenographer in Wardrobe.

"Between my office and the factory proper there is a glass partition with window sashes which can be opened. Against one of these sashes and near my office desk is a high bookcase. We opened the window and moved a large wardrobe against it on the factory side. We then removed a part of the wooden panel in the back of the wardrobe and a corresponding part of a panel in the back of the bookcase. This made it possible for a person in the wardrobe to look between the books and see into my office.

"The wardrobe was so large and deep that four or five men easily could get in it and close the doors. On the Saturday afternoon set for Baker's visit, my young man stenographer was in the wardrobe with pencil and notebook. Keaney and two other detectives and Attorney Leahy also were there.

Tells of Conversation.

"Baker came in and I seated him near my desk and within six inches of the front of the bookcase. The detectives could have reached through and touched him. The stenographer took down all we said.

"Baker said: 'Now are you ready to talk?'

"I replied that I was.

"'How much insurance do you usually carry?' he asked.

"'About $40,000 to $60,000, according to the size of my stock,' I replied.

"'Then it would be easy to slap on $50,000 more,' said Baker. 'We would have to split that excess insurance three ways. I want one part. A friend who will help me in the work must get one part and the remaining portion will be yours.'

"'But,' I said, 'several fires have been bungled lately.'

"'O,' said Baker, 'this will be done by experts. They do it all the time.'

"'I don't want to get into any danger of going to the penitentiary,' I said.

"Baker replied: 'Why, there's no danger. I don't know the meaning of the word "fail."'

"'You talk big,' I said, 'but you're only a clerk. I'd like to have assurance from someone else.'

"'All right,' said Baker. 'I'll have one of the most prominent insurance men in town come to see you. A man that you know.'

"Baker named Julius Bersch as the man who would come to see me and the following Saturday was set as the time for the visit.

"Bersch came alone at the appointed time. I knew that he probably would want to go through the plant, and I did not have so many persons around. Only the stenographer and I were there. The stenographer was dressed in overalls and was pretending to be busy cleaning the machinery in the factory. After Bersch and I had gone through the plant I took him into my office and sat him in the same chair where Baker had sat a week before. The stenographer slipped into the wardrobe.

"Bersch said my plan wasn't quite ripe, as I recently had had my stock appraised and if I put on $50,000 more insurance it might excite comment. He said it would stand about $35,000 extra insurance, though, and that would leave a good bit for the three of us.

"I asked him if he would place the extra insurance. He said he would not and he gave me the names of two agencies which he said would be glad to do so. This, he said, would leave him free to look after the adjusting for me without causing comment. I asked him if he was sure about the adjusting, and he replied that the adjuster connected with his office was the finest in the city.

"While Bersch was inspecting the plant he saw a very fine mule in the yard. He told me to get the mule out of there before the fire, as he didn't want to kill any living thing.

Says Baker Returned.

"Baker came into my office, Sept. 3.

"'How would the 11th strike you as a good day for the fire?' he asked.

"'It will suit me all right,' I replied.

"'I want to get four or five barrels of gasoline into the plant about Thursday night,' he said.

"I wouldn't agree to this, as I feared an inspection might be made between Thursday and Saturday and I would get into trouble for having an unlawful quantity of oil on the premises. So it was agreed that the gasoline should be brought in Saturday afternoon after all the employes had gone home. Baker said there would be three men and the driver. He said I could let them in and then go away and they would do the rest.

"I let them in, all right, but as soon as the gate swung shut on them detectives whom I had tipped off closed in, with revolvers and riot guns, and arrested them."

DEPUTY SHERIFF IS MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT TO DEATH

Amandus Hieronymus of 1430 East Broadway, East St. Louis, a Deputy Sheriff of St. Clair County, Ill., was mysteriously shot on the porch of his home at 2 a. m. today and died nine hours later at the Deaconess Hospital.

His explanation of the shooting was that he saw a negro burglar in his yard and shot at him, and at the same time he was fired upon from behind.

He was struck by two bullets, one penetrating the chest below the heart and the other the hip. The surgeons who operated on him said that there were powder burns around the wound on the hip.

Hieronymus was assigned to duty last night at Washington Park, a roadhouse amusement resort. He remained there until midnight, when he went home. His wife said he stayed up to cool off. She went to bed, and a few minutes later was awakened by the report of a shot.

Hieronymus was 39 years old and formerly was Chief Deputy Sheriff in East St. Louis. His associates have been unable to solve the mystery connected with the shooting.

BERSCH HELD IN ARSON INQUIRY ON $2000 BOND

Herbert O. Baker, One of Insurance Man's Employes, Taken to Circuit Attorney.

"Baker made the fatal mistake of going to an honest man with his proposal," said Chief Young. "If he had approached someone less scrupulous than Joseph Christen, the arson promotion business might still be going on undetected."

According to Detective Keaney, the Christen concern depends largely on the cotton-growing states for its business, and the depression in the cotton market, due to the war, affected Christen's business unfavorably. This, according to Baker's confession, gave Baker the idea of approaching Christen as to a fire.

When the first alleged suggestion was made by Baker that he should increase his insurance and then "burn out," Christen refused to listen to it, he said. Later, according to Detective Keaney, Bersch called on Christen with Baker, and talked with him of an increase in his insurance. Christen, who had, in the meantime, told officials of the Fire Prevention Bureau of the matter, listened to the proposal this time, he said, for the purpose of disclosing the methods of arson promotion, and gradually entered into the plan.

Christen carried $40,000 legitimate insurance. Baker proposed, according to Keaney, that $50,000 be added to this, but Bersch, after looking over Christen's establishment, held that it would not "stand" so much insurance and that an additional $25,000, making a total of $65,000, would be sufficient.

Stenographer Concealed.

Two of the conversations between Bersch and Baker and Christen, Keaney said, were held in a room where a stenographer was concealed behind a bookcase, and the notes of these conversations are in the Circuit Attorney's hands. Circuit Attorney Harvey confirmed this statement, but would not tell the details of the conversations.

Later, Keaney said, Baker and Bersch arranged their meetings with Christen so that they would talk to him while riding in automobiles. Christen made frequent reports to B. C. Applegate of a private detective agency on the progress of the negotiations.

Keaney said that, while most of the remarks about incendiary work, made to Christen, came from Baker, testimony would be put before the Circuit Attorney to the effect that Bersch spoke of the arrival of "experts from Chicago" who would drive down Buchanan street to the bellows factory, and who would not be seen on Dock street.

These experts, Keaney believes, were the four so-called "torches," now under bond. Keaney says he learned from Baker that the "torches" were supposed to receive $6000 of the proceeds of the fire, and that the excess insurance was to be divided three ways, Christen and Baker getting two parts.

One of the facts in the Gilmore-Bonfig case, Keaney said, was that all the insurance policies on the decorating establishment were issued through the Bersch agency, but none of them on companies which the agency represented directly.

Bersch, is a brother of the late Edmund Bersch, who represented the old First Ward in the House of Delegates in boodle days, and who served two years in the penitentiary for perjury, dying after his release.

At the time of the Gilmore-Bonfig fire, H. G. Gilmore, proprietor of the establishment, said he had received a black hand letter, supposed to be from a discharged employe. A man was seen running away from the building, with his hands cut, just after the explosion which started the fire.

Won't Name Insurance Amount.

Harold G. Gilmore of 4967 McPherson avenue, senior partner in the Gilmore-Bonfig Decorating Co., told a Post-Dispatch reporter this morning that he had been in St. Louis most of the time since the fire, and that he would remain here, and would be on hand if the police desired any information from him.

He refused to name the amount of insurance which he carried at the time of the fire, but said misstatements as to the amount had been published. When told that his partner, Carl Bonfig, said he had not seen Gilmore since three days after the fire, he said this was Bonfig's own fault, as he was at home or at his temporary office, 4353 Olive street.

When asked what was his opinion as to the cause of the fire, Gilmore said he had his suspicions, but that suspicion was not proof, and that he preferred to say nothing.

Gilmore declared that Bonfig had not been in the company since a week before the fire, and that the company's minutes would show his removal, by vote of the directors. This action was taken, Gilmore said, because Bonfig failed to put certain amounts of money into the business, as he had promised.

"Baker has probably gone and done something he had no right to," Gilmore remarked, "and now he is trying to throw suspicion on others."

Bonfig Tells of Partnership.

Carl Bonfig of 5564A Kingsbury avenue, told a reporter that he had not seen Gilmore since he asked him, three days after the fire of July 24 to meet him for an accounting of their interests. He said he still had confidence in Gilmore's honesty, but that he was unable to account for some of his actions before and immediately after the fire.

Bonfig said he knew Gilmore 20 years before the beginning, last March, of their partnership. A month before the fire, he said, Gilmore began acting in abrupt fashion toward him, and eight days before the fire Gilmore sent a lawyer to him, in the attempt to get him out of the firm. Bonfig said he refused to get out, but that after that time Gilmore and Gilmore's friends treated him as if he were not in the business. A number of persons, who looked to him like solicitors, called, he said, but would talk only with Gilmore.

Gilmore attended to the insurance, Bonfig said. When he asked Gilmore the amount of the insurance, after the fire, he said Gilmore told him it was $15,000, but that, "like a fool," he had let $5000 lapse the week before. Bonfig understood this to mean $5000 in addition to the $15,000.

The fire occurred on a Saturday afternoon, and the following Tuesday, Bonfig said, he saw Gilmore and asked him to make a settlement. Gilmore excused himself to go to lunch, and Bonfig said he had not seen him since, but that he had placed his affairs, in relation to the concern, in the hands of Attorney Henry Kortjohn.

Kortjohn said he and Bonfig learned, some time ago, that the fire was under investigation by detectives. A suit for an accounting on the insurance, which he had intended to file against Gilmore, was deferred at the detectives' request, Kortjohn said.

Kortjohn said he was told by Detective Keaney that there was $35,000 insurance, whereas Gilmore had told Bonfig that there was but $15,000 in effect at the time of the fire. He said Gilmore tried to "freeze" Bonfig out of the firm, because Bonfig had not paid a $500 note. The capital stock of the company, he said, was $6000, which the two borrowed on their notes.

U-BOAT VIOLATED INSTRUCTIONS IN ATTACKING ORDUNA

Was Told Not to Torpedo Any Liner, but Was Unable to Learn Character of Ship.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Germany's explanation of the unsuccessful attempt to destroy the Cunard liner Orduna, July 9, is that the submarine commander violated his instructions, which were not to attack any liner, but that because of the weather he was unable to make out the character or nationality of the Orduna.

The Orduna, bound from Liverpool to New York with some 200 passengers, of whom 22 were Americans, was attacked by a torpedo, which barely missed her, and then was shelled by the submarine until she was out of range.

Allowed Another Ship to Pass.

To substantiate the statement that the German commander was inclined to follow his orders, it is said that he soon afterward allowed the steamer Normandie, carrying a cargo of lumber, to pass unmolested.

The German explanation, which comes in the form of a note, was laid before President Wilson today by Secretary Lansing and may figure in discussion of the submarine issue with Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador.

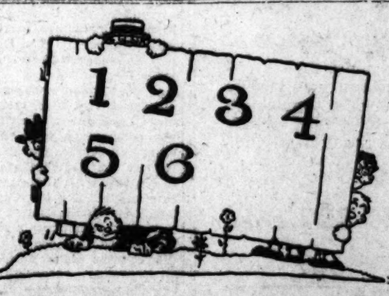

Count von Bernstorff made an engagement to confer with Secretary Lansing at noon. Mr. Lansing before seeing the Ambassador went to the White House to talk with the President. It is probable that the Ambassador will have an audience with the President later.

Favorable Outcome Expected.

Ambassador Bernstorff's conference with Secretary Lansing lasted just half an hour. The Ambassador made it clear, however, that the situation had not come to an impasse. From his manner some of his questioners inferred that his conference with the Secretary forecasts a favorable outcome and that probably arbitration may be agreed upon.

When Count von Bernstorff returned to the embassy he sent a report to his Foreign Office which was believed to outline the evidence Secretary Lansing has to show the Arabic was torpedoed without warning and to controvert the claim she was about to ram the submarine. It was understood that the conference developed no suggestion from either side that the principles of submarine warfare be included in a proposal for arbitration. The inference which officials allowed to go out was that the negotiations were, so far, proceeding amicably and were awaiting developments between Washington and Berlin.

Secretary Lansing announced today after a conference with President Wilson that no decision had yet been reached by the United States on Germany's proposal to arbitrate the Arabic case. It was indicated in official quarters that both Germany and the United States agree that to arbitrate the question of indemnity involves arbitrating the justification and the facts.

VICTORY OR DEFEAT RESTS WHOLLY WITH THE BRITISH, SAYS DAVID LLOYD-GEORGE

Minister of Munitions in Preface to Book of His Speeches Admits Central Powers Are Now in the Ascendancy and Russia Has Shot Her Bolt.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—"If British women and children were being brutally destroyed on the high seas by German submarines this nation would have insisted on calling the infanticide empire to a stern reckoning," declares David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, in the preface of a book entitled "Through Terror to Triumph," containing his speeches since the outbreak of the war.

"After 12 months of war," he says, "my conviction is stronger than ever that this country could not have kept out of it without imperiling its security and its honor. We could not have looked on dynically with folded arms while a country we had given our word to protect was being ravaged, trodden on by one of our own co-trustees.

"Everything that has happened since the declaration of war has clearly demonstrated that a military system so regardless of good faith, honorable obligations and the elementary impulses of humanity constitutes a menace to civilization of the most sinister character, and, despite the terrible cost of suppressing it, the well-being of humanity demands that such a system should be challenged and destroyed.

"The fact that events also have shown that the might of this military clique has exceeded the gloomiest prognostications provides an additional argument for its destruction.

Must Exert All Their Strength.

"Nor have the untoward incidents of the war weakened my faith in ultimate victory, always provided that the nations put forth the whole of their strength before it is too late. Anything less must lead to defeat. The allied countries have an overwhelming preponderance in the raw material that goes to the making of the equipment of armies, whether in men, money or accessible metal and machinery, but this material has to be mobilized and utilized.

"It would be idle to pretend that the first 12 months of the war have seen this task accomplished satisfactorily. Had the allies realized in time the full strength of their redoubtable and resourceful foes; nay, what is more, had they realized their own strength and resources and taken prompt action to organize them, today we should have witnessed the triumphant spectacle of their guns pouring out a stream of shot and shell which would have deluged the German trenches with fire and scorched the German legions back across their frontier.

Central Powers Still Supreme.

"With the resources of Great Britain, France and Russia; yes, of the whole industrial world, at the disposal of the allies, the central Powers still have an overwhelming superiority in all the material and equipment of war. The result of this deplorable fact is exactly what might have been foreseen. The iron heel of Germany has sunk deeper than ever into Belgian and French soil. Poland is entirely German and Lithuania is rapidly following. Russian fortresses deemed impregnable are falling like sand castles before the ruthless tide of Teutonic invasion.

"When will that tide recede or be stemmed? As soon as the allies are supplied with an abundance of war material."

The Minister says that he is recalling unpleasant facts in order to stir his countrymen to put forth their strength to amend the situation. There has been a great awakening, he says, and prodigious efforts are being made to equip the armies, but, the Minister adds, "nothing but our best can pull us through." He asks:

"Are we straining every nerve to make up for lost time? Are we getting all the men we shall want to put into the firing line next year to enable us even to hold our own? Does every man who can help, whether by fighting or providing material, understand clearly that ruin awaits remission

What Russia's Repulse Means.

"How many people in this country fully apprehend to its full significance the Russian retreat? For over 12 months Russia, despite deficiencies in equipment, has absorbed the energies of half the German and four-fifths of the Austrian forces. Is it realized that for the time being Russia has made his contribution to the struggle for European freedom and that we cannot for months to come expect the same active help from the Russian armies we have hitherto received? Who is to take the Russian place while those Russian armies are re-equipping? Who is to bear the weight which has hitherto fallen on Russian shoulders?

"France cannot be expected to sustain much heavier burdens than those she now bears, with a quiet courage, which has astonished and moved the world. Italy is putting her strength into the fight. There is only Britain left.

"Is Britain prepared to fill up the gap that will be created when Russia retires to the rear? Is she fully prepared to cope with all the possibilities of the next few months in the West, without forgetting the East? Upon the answer will depend the liberties of Europe for many generations.

Crisis in Three Months.

"A shrewd and sagacious observer told me the other day in his judgment the course pursued by this country during the next three months would decide the fate of the war.

"If we are not allowed to equip our factories and workshops with adequate labor to supply our armies, because we must not transgress regulations applicable to normal conditions; if practices are maintained which restrict the output of essential war material; if the nation hesitates when the need is clear to take the necessary steps to call forth its manhood to defend its honor and existence; if vital decisions are postponed until too late; if we neglect to make ready for all possible eventualities; if, in fact, we give ground for the accusation that we are slouching into disaster as if we were walking along the ordinary paths of peace, without an enemy in sight, then I can see no hope.

"But if we sacrifice all we own and all we like for our native land, and if our preparations are marked by grim resolution and prompt readiness in every sphere then victory is assured."

POSITION OF TURKS CRITICAL, AMERICAN IN ATHENS IS TOLD

Committee of Union and Progress Virtually Superseded by an Autocratic Triumvirate.

ATHENS, Sept. 13.—An American citizen of standing in Athens has received advices from Constantinople, which he says are trustworthy, that the situation of the Turkish army and Government is unfavorable. According to this information the position of the Turkish forces defending the Dardanelles is precarious. It is said the Turkish front, thinned by the heavy losses which the fighting has entailed on both sides, is finding it increasingly difficult to hold the lines against the French and British.

Turkey's position at sea is described as disadvantageous. The former German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, renamed the Sultan Selim and Medullu, are said to have been incapacitated, while the Russian fleet preys upon Turkish shipping.

Controlled by Triumvirate.

According to this information, Turkish affairs are under the control of a triumvirate with autocratic powers, consisting of Enver Pasha, Minister of War; Taalat Bey, Minister of the Interior, and Beori Bey, Chief of Police of Constantinople.

Dissatisfaction among the Moslems is reported and it is said that Shiek Ul Islam was dismissed because he did not approve of measures taken against the Armenians. The Committee of Union and Progress is reported to have been virtually superseded by a secret committee which is responsive to the wishes of the triumvirate.

The American's informant states that Armenians are being shipped to concentration camps at various points, being driven afoot or forwarded in box cars. He adds that the earlier massacres of Christians in Asia Minor are being duplicated in the present instances and that in some cases only a comparatively small part of the expelled Armenians reach the concentration camps alive.

American Women Turned Back.

Henry Morgenthau, American Ambassador at Constantinople, has exerted every effort to protect the Armenians, but apparently his endeavors have been unavailing. It is stated that American women who attempted to go with the refugees to look out for Armenian children were turned back and that a number of young Armenian girls who were students at the American College at Constantinople fell into the hands of the Turks.

Owing to the interruption of sea transportation it is almost impossible to purchase coal in Constantinople, and wood is being used for locomotives. Crops were good, but it has been almost impossible to harvest them. Petroleum costs $1 a gallon and the price of sugar has increased seven-fold.

The American's informant states that the agreement said to have been reached between Turkey and Bulgaria has not effected a definite settlement of relations, but that, to the contrary, the Turks are hastily erecting defenses against the Bulgarians.

GERMANS OFFERED FUND FOR STRIKE OF LONGSHOREMEN

New York World Reveals Plot to Spread Mob Violence on Both Coasts of This Country in Effort to Prevent Shipment of Munitions to the Allies.

PRESIDENT OF UNION INFORMS GOVERNMENT

T. V. O'Connor Aided in Defeating Plan to Finance Six Weeks' Strike at a Cost of $1,000,000—Grocer Intermediary.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The story of a strike that failed is here told for the first time. The correspondence upon which it is based has come into the possession of the New York World. The features presented supply convincing information never before obtainable.

The correspondence clearly reveals the inception, history and final collapse of the unsuccessful attempt made by agents of the German and Austrian Governments to buy strikes and mob violence in the United States. Conspicuous among these agents occurs the name of Dr. Dernburg, German propagandist (already exiled).

That this effort failed is due to the patriotic loyalty of the officials of the International Longshoremen's Association and its locals operating under and in co-operation with the officials of their Government. The chief actors in the frustration of the plot represented the two extremes of society. Shown to have been working toward the same, although without personal contact, are Woodrow Wilson, the President of the United States; William B. Wilson, the Secretary of Labor, T. V. O'Connor, the president of the International Longshoremen's Union; Paul Kelly, the reformed New York gang leader, and "Dick" Butler, the Longshore "boss" and kidnaper of Harry Thaw from Matteawan.

The plot was first made known to the leaders of the Longshoremen's Association by Matthew F. Cummings, a prosperous grocery man of Boston, who bore letters of indorsement from Prof. von Mach of Harvard University and son-in-law of the late former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long. The plan contemplated a five weeks' strike by the 23,000 longshore workers at Atlantic coast ports, at a cost of $1,035,000.

Purpose Behind Strike.

The ostensible purpose of this strike, which was to be engineered under the most secretive conditions, was to prevent the shipment of munitions to the allied Governments at war with Germany and Austria. The real purpose was to bring about a reign of disorder and mob violence on the various water fronts to provide a curtain which would shield the attempts to prevent the shipment of munitions to the allies, it being the expectation that such occurrence would be interpreted by the general public as the natural accompaniments of such a strike. In addition to Cummings, other agents of the German and Austrian Governments, plentifully supplied with money were working to bring about strikes in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Newport News, Charleston, New Orleans and Pacific Coast points. In the hold of one ship on the eve of its sailing from Seattle the scouts of the Longshoremen's Union found 128 sticks of dynamite hidden in the cargo destined for a French port.

Although the name of Dr. Dernburg does not actually appear in the correspondence given by the World, it is the understanding of the labor officials who were approached with offers of money to promote the strike that that distinguished representative of the dual Teutonic monarchies was to supply the money to pay for it. This understanding is based upon verbal admissions made by Cummings to labor leaders and by other information now in the possession of this Government. One of the men consulted by Cummings was George Sylvester Viereck, the editor of Fatherland, the pro-German "neutral" publication which the World has shown was established and maintained by officials of the German Government.

The evidence upon which the World's publication is based is provided by letters, telegrams, records of conversations and incidents occurring between May 7 and ending on July 10 of the present year.

Bombs Found on Ships.

During this period the following incidents occurred:

May 12—Fire in hold of steamer Devon City at foot of West Thirty-fourth street, New York.

May 24—Incendiary bomb found in the cargo of Bankdale on her arrival in French port.

June 5—Incendiary bombs in cargo of Kirkeswald found on her arrival at Marseilles.

July 8—Bomb explosion on Minnehaha at sea.

William P. Dempsey, secretary and treasurer of the Atlantic Coast International Longshoremen's Union, the headquarters of which was at Boston, on May 7 met Dennis Driscoos, an active labor leader of Boston and some time public office holder, at the Quincy House in that city.

Driscoll said that Matthew Cummings had outlined to him a plan to promote a strike among the longshoremen at different ports along the Atlantic Coast.

Cummings declared he was acting for interests that would put up $1,000,000 immediately the strike was arranged. While not connected with the Longshoremen's organization, he appeared to be unusually well informed as to its affairs. He told Driscoll and later President O'Conner that his plan contemplated a strike by 23,000 longshoremen. The strikers were to be paid at the rate of $10 per week while on strike; Cummings figured that this strike would last about six weeks, by which time its purposes would have been accomplished.

Driscoll, at the instance of Cummings, arranged a meeting with Dempsey at the Quincy House the same afternoon. Cummings called on time and the two men were introduced, but they did not discuss the strike. Dempsey became alarmed at the project and promptly arranged a meeting with President O'Conner at Albany, where the latter was attending the constitutional convention as a delegate from Buffalo.

Dempsey gave the president of the Longshoremen's Union all the information he had regarding the proposition of Cummings to finance the strike among the longshoremen. After some discussion the two men decided to "play the game."

On the following day, in accordance with this plan, they went to Boston, sent for Driscoll and arranged a meeting between President O'Conner and Cummings. O'Conner encouraged Cummings to talk. He has since said that his "hair stood on end" as Cummings went into the details of the plot. The features of the scheme were that O'Conner, who was promised substantial compensation for his work, was to evolve a plan for bringing about a strike of the longshore workers at Atlantic coast ports.

Figured Cost at $1,635,000.

Cummings said that his principals had figured out that a strike of five or six weeks would cost about $1,635,000. This, he said, "could be easily obtained."

When O'Conner insisted on knowing the name of Cummings' "principal" the latter became wary and said that he would have to consult him before disclosing his identity. A casual reference made by him, however, left no doubt in the mind of the longshoremen's president that Cummings' "principal" was Dr. Dernburg. Cummings referred to him as the "big man."

President O'Conner returned to Buffalo and wired Secretary of Labor Wilson at Washington asking if the latter was coming to Buffalo to attend the Switchmen's convention two days later. Secretary Wilson replied that he would be at the convention. When the two men met Mr. O'Conner told the Secretary the whole story of the Cummings plot.

Along about noon of Sunday, May 23, Cummings approached O'Conner at the Marlboro Hotel, New York, and asked for a conference. O'Conner, for the manifest purpose of hearing all the information that he could from Cummings, insisted that he should be informed as to the identity of Cummings' principals; also that there should be no uncertainty about the depositing of the $1,035,000 in a safe place. Cummings mentioned that he had a letter of introduction to his people in New York from Dr. Edmund von Mach of Harvard University. Prof. von Mach has been a frequent contributor to the Fatherland, the weekly periodical edited by George Sylvester Viereck.

Leaving O'Conner for a few minutes Cummings went to the telephone and called up 6510 Riverside. George Sylvester Viereck's telephone number is 6510 Riverside. Cummings made an appointment with someone who answered the telephone and immediately left.

At 7:15 o'clock that night Cummings returned to the hotel and met O'Conner. The two men further discussed the plan proposed by Cummings. Every time that O'Conner attempted to secure from the Boston groceryman the names of his principals the latter evaded a direct answer.

From June 16 until July 10 O'Conner was detained on the Pacific coast, where, with the assistance of the loyal and patriotic leaders of the Longshoremen's Union he succeeded in putting a stop to the mischief by effecting agreements between the steamship companies and the members of the Longshoremen's Union that obviated the necessity of a strike at Pacific ports.

Beyond the documentary evidence of the attempt to buy strikes and riots in the United States, there is supplemental information to be secured from the chief actors in it whose identities have been established.

O'Conner has replied to all inquiries with the statement that he is not willing to discuss "the executive affairs of the Longshoremen's Union."

Denial by Cummings.

Cummings, when interviewed, was not communicative or cordial. He pronounced the facts as disclosed above "a pipe dream."

"Then the letters bearing your signature and the telegrams supposed to be sent you are absolute forgeries?"

"What I have done or have not done is none of the World's business," answered Cummings.

"Have you, or have you not, acted as the representative of the German Government, its officials or of a pro-German propaganda in attempting to bring about a strike of the longshoremen?"

"I have never seen a cent of German money in all my life," answered Cummings, emphasizing every word.

"But did you have a hand in attempting to bring about a longshoremen's strike?"

"I know nothing about the longshoremen."

"How do you explain the existence of the telegrams, letters and documentary reports indicating that you captained the efforts to draw the officers of the longshoremen's unions into this scheme?"

"I've already told you," remonstrated Cummings, "that this stuff of the World is a pipe dream—a pipe dream, I tell you."

"Did you ask Dennis D. Driscoll to introduced you to William F. Dempsey, the secretary and treasurer of the International Longshoremen's Union?"

"I never met Dempsey in my life," snapped Cummings.

"Did you meet Mr. O'Conner, president of the International Longshoremen's Union, at the Marlborough Hotel in New York and didn't"—

"Just a minute," interrupted Cummings. "I've traveled all over the country and met many, many people. I've been to the Marlborough Hotel and probably was there at the time the World thinks I was there."

"Did you meet Mr. O'Conner?"

"Oh, I might have met O'Conner. I probably did. I've known O'Conner a long time. He's a friend of mine."

SERIES OF TRAVEL TALKS TO OPEN AT ODEON TONIGHT

F. R. Roberson's Subject on First Two Evenings of Engagement Will Be "Germany."

Frank R. Roberson's travelogue season at the Odeon, from the receipts of which the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund is to get $1000, starts tonight.

Germany is the land to be toured tonight and in addition to views of many large cities and interesting places, German soldiers will "goose-step" before the Kaiser, members of his family and general staff, uhlans will ride in review, Zeppelins rise in flight and submarines dash through the water.

Because of the interest in "Germany" as a subject, it has been scheduled again for tomorrow night. Wednesday night, the the third offering on the schedule, will be "England," also a realistic portrayal of the militant element in English life. A motion picture in this travelogue will be that of the Lusitania, starting on one of her last voyages across the Atlantic.

Roberson arrived in St. Louis this morning. The special baggage car in which he carries the 72 pieces of baggage for his engagement was on the same train.

The coupon on the first page of today's Post-Dispatch, accompanied by 10 cents, will obtain admission. Reserved seats are 25 cents, with no coupon required. There are 1100 unreserved seats. The doors will open at 7:15, an hour before the travelogue commences. Reserved seats for all travelogues are on sale in the Odeon box office and at the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co.

Archibald to Be Met at Pier by Federal Agents

communications would be received through him.

Lord Wellesley, British Minister for Foreign Affairs, complained against the course of the United States, in taking summary action without first laying ecmplaint before the King of England and giving the latter an opportunity to act. Lord Wellesley declared that His Majesty, desiring to yield to wishes of nations at amity with him, would recall Jackson. In this action, His Majesty had "not marked with any expression of his displeasure, the conduct of Mr. Jackson, whose integrity, zeal and ability have long been distinguished in His Majesty's service, and who does not appear on the present occasion to have committed any international offense against the Government of the United States. Jackson was ordered to leave his mission in charge of a competent person.

After waiting almost a year for the British Government to appoint a successor to Jackson, the American Minister at London informed Lord Wellesley that, as the British Government continued to be represented at Washington by a Charge d'Affaires, the Government of the United States could not continue to be represented in London by a Minister Plenipotentiary, and he therefore asked for an audience in order that he might take his leave of absence and return to the United States.

Wellesley, in a private note, declared that the delay had been caused primarily by a desire to select someone who would be eminently satisfactory to the United States and promised that a successor would be named shortly. Not long afterward Foster was named to succeed Jackson.

Attitude of United States.

The United States has ever been a stickler for the distinction between a representative in Washington of a foreign office and the representive of the ruling Power in a foreign office.

In 1855 Chevalier Augiar d'Andrada, Charge ad interim of the Brazilian Legation, requested leave of Secretary of State Marcy to present to the President of the United States at a personal audience an autographed communication from his sovereign, citing several precedents for the request. In denying this request, Secretary Marcy replied that the precedents quoted were the results of accidents, and that the United States always insisted in the conduct of its diplomatic offices on the distinction between an officer accredited to the sovereign Power and one accredited to the foreign office of another Government.

In view of the fact that the United States Embassy in Vienna is now in charge of the interests of Great Britain, France and Russia, the withdrawal of Ambassador Penfield on leave of absence might complicate matters seriously.

SEVERAL THOUSAND PERSONS VISIT NEW CATHOLIC SEMINARY

$700,000 Institution, for Education of Priests, Closed to Public After Inspection Yesterday.

The new $700,000 St. Louis Roman Catholic Theological Seminary at Glennon Park in St. Louis County, was opened for public inspection yesterday. Several thousand persons visited the institution during the day, before it was closed forever to the public. The seminary will open Wednesday for the matriculation of theological students.

The seminary is in a park of 350 acres, in the foothills of the Meramec. The dedication orations were delivered by Archbishop Glennon and the Rev. Father P. W. Tallon, president of the seminary. The new institution is the successor to the Kenrick Seminary at Nineteenth street and Cass avenue. The priests for the St. Louis diocese will be educated and trained in the seminary, a six years' course of study for the priesthood being required. Fifteen languages are used in the 91 Catholic churches of St. Louis, and provision has been made by the faculty for teaching the students in different languages so that there will be no shortage of priests.

CAPT. VON PAPEN STARTS FOR WEST

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Capt. Franz von Papen, military attache of the German embassy, has left New York. In company with Prince von Hatzfeldt, Chancellor of the embassy, he will spend three weeks in Yellowstone Park, unless some development not now anticipated shall require his return earlier.

The departure of Capt. von Papen, kept a secret from all except his closest friends, is regarded as some surprise, in view of the coupling of his name with that of Dr. Dumba, Austrian Ambassador, whose recall has been asked Vienna by President Wilson. Von Papen decided to make the trip West "for the benefit of his health," his friends explain.

NAVAL ADVISORY BOARD TO BEGIN WORK ON OCT. 6

Body of 23 Scientific Experts, Headed by Edison, to Meet With Secretary Daniels.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Officials began plans today for the first meeting of the new Naval Advisory Board, which will direct its activities toward improving the American navy through science and invention. Secretary Daniels' announcement of the board's personnel said it would have its first session in his office on Oct. 6. Thomas A. Edison, the chairman, will preside.

The 23 members of the board—exclusive of Edison—were nominated by 11 scientific and engineering societies at the request of Secretary Daniels, who sought to mobilize the country's inventive genius for the navy as a step in national defense plans.

The board's recommendations and conclusions will have great weight, Secretary Daniels said, in the forming of the administration's proposal to Congress and in the operations and development of the navy.

Members of the Board.

The members of the board and the societies which nominated them follow:

American Aeronautical Society—Hudson Maxim, Brooklyn, ordnance and explosive expert and maker of the first smokeless powder adopted by the United States Government; Matthew Bacon Sellers, Baltimore, authority on aeronautics and the first to determine the dynamic air pressure on arched surfaces by means of the "wind funnel."

American Society of Automobile Engineers—Howard E. Coffin, Detroit, Mich., and Andrew J. Riker, Bridgeport, Conn., inventors, automobile builders, and now vice president of large automobile manufacturing companies.

The Inventors' Guild—Dr. Peter Cooper Hewitt, New York, inventor of appliances for telephones, hydroplanes, aeroplanes, balloons and electric lights; Thomas Robbins, Stamford, Conn., inventor of many mechanical devices, including the belt conveyor, for coal and ore, served in the New York Naval Reserve and observed military conditions at the front in France during the present war.

Native of Belgium.

American Chemical Society—Dr. W. R. Whitney, Schenectady, N. Y., creator and director of the research laboratory of the General Electric Co.; L. H. Baekelan, Yonkers, N. Y., a native of Belgium, famed particularly for the invention of a photographic paper.

American Institute of American Engineers: Frank Julian Sprague, New York, an early assistant of Edison, who directed the building of the first successful electric trolley railways in the United States, Italy and Germany, and equipped the first electrically trained gun for the navy; Benjamin G. Lamme, Pittsburg, inventor and head of a committee which passes upon all Westinghouse inventions.

American Mathematical Society: Robert Simpson Woodward, president of the Carnegie Institute at Washington, D. C., and an authority on astronomy, geography and mathematical physics; Dr. Arthur Gordon Webster, Worcester, Mass., professor of physics at Clark University, inventor and the leading authority in America on sound.

Son of a Rear Admiral.

American Society of Civil Engineers: Andrew Murray Hunt, New York, graduate of the United States Naval Academy and experienced in development of hydro-electric steam and gas plants; Alfred Graven, New York, son of an American Rear Admiral and now chief engineer of the New York Public Service Commission.

The American Institute of Mining Engineers: William Lawrence Saunders, New York, inventor and engineer, former newspaper and magazine editor and former Mayor of Plainfield, N. J.; Benjamin Bowditch Thayer, New York, metallurgist and explosive expert and now president of the Anaconda Mining Co.

The American Electro-Chemical Society—Dr. Joseph William Richards, South Bethlehem, Pa., professor of metallurgy at Lehigh University; Lawrence Addicks, Shrome, N. J., metallurgical engineer and president of the American Electro-Chemical Society.

Electric Ship Propulsion.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers—William Leroy Emmet, Schenectady, N. Y., engineer and inventor and first serious promoter of electric ship propulsion, having conducted the recent epoch-making series of experiments in the naval collier Jupiter; Spencer Miller, South Orange, N. J.

KRUPPS MAKING ALL KINDS OF ARTILLERY AMMUNITION NEAR CONSTANTINOPLE

End of Three Months of "Position" Fighting at Ari Burnu and Suddul Bahr Finds Allies Gaining but Little.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 13.—Exactly three months have passed since the "position" war between the allies and the Turks at Ari Burnu and Seddul Bahr started. On May 4 the Turkish troops had dug and occupied the trenches in which, with few exceptions, they are still found today.

There is no longer any doubt that the allies believed firmly that the Turkish artillery would soon be without ammunition. Prisoners of war and the letters and diaries found in the allied trenches have again and again reiterated this. But this state of affairs has never set in. During the last two weeks the Turkish batteries at Ari Burnu, Seddul Bahr and on the Anatolian shore of the Dardanelles have been very active, and have shown that there is no lack of ammunition to be hoped for, owing to the resourcefulness of the men forming the Ottoman general staff. Employes of the Krupp establishment are making artillery ammunition of all sorts in and near this city.

Make Shells of Largest Caliber.

The Turks have the situation so well in hand now that even shells of the largest calibers are being turned out under the management of German ordnance officers brought here for the purpose. Even an infantry rifle factory is now in operation.

The coming of autumn will render the position of the allied troops on the peninsula even more precarious, should they have failed by that time to advance considerably beyond their present positions. So far the allies have found it impossible to establish near Seddul-Bahr and Ari Burnu the supply bases that will be needed when, during the fall and winter months, bad weather will make it impossible to ship, from the adjacent islands of Imbros, Lemnos and Tenedos, in the piecemeal fashion in which this is now done, the food and ammunition required by the allied troops. Large supply ships nearing the coast of the peninsula are regularly driven off by the Turkish artillery. As the result of this the vessels are generally lightered out to the open sea, and the barges brought in during the night. With a high sea running in the fall and winter this will be a difficult undertaking. So immense will be the supply problems of the allied forces on the peninsula then that an evacuation may become necessary, according to well-informed officers here. In harmony with this, the Turkish batteries have for some time taken under fire anything that gave the impression that it contained stores for immediate or future use. During the last three weeks five such magazines have been destroyed by the Turkish shells.

Meanwhile much interest is shown here in the modus operandi the allies would employ in removing their troops from the peninsula. The allies could not evacuate all of their positions and reembark their men in a single night, the time best suited for this. The Turks, undoubtedly, it is believed here, would learn of the retreat, and by a series of assaults turn it into a terrible rout, which would have its end in the short waters of the peninsula. Under the cover of a large fleet, the re-embarking of the allied troops might be less difficult, but here again the German submarines must be taken into consideration. Transports and men-of-war might fall their prey alike.

Prepared for Italians.

Even the most conservative review of the allies position on the Gallipoli peninsula, as seen from Turkish side, leaves little in favor of the French and English troops, though, no doubt, as everybody here admits, their fate will be decided on the battlefields of the East and West. Whether the landing of a large Italian force, so much spoken of recently, would change the situation materially depends upon developments incident to this operation. Certain it is that today there is no locality suitable for a landing of the Italians which has not been prepared for their reception.

Offensives by the allies, and counter-offensives by the Turks, have led to but slight changes in the terrains occupied immediately after the landing of the allied troops during the last week of April. At Ari Burnu very litle terrain has been lost by either side. While temporary changes have been somewhat greater and more frequent at Seddul-Bahr, both Turks and allies, have strained constantly every resource to regain what had been lost. In most cases the allies have re-occupied lost trenches by virtue of overwhelming bombardments, while the Turks have retaken their lost trenches at the point of the bayonet, as a rule. Latterly, too, the sapper's mine has been often employed by both sides when a trench of the opponent had to be taken, or when a trench had to be re-occupied.

During the last three weeks "position" fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula has diminished to what may be termed its minimum. The Turks have not pressed the allies, because, for the time being, little was to be gained by driving the French and English forces from the peninsula. It has been argued here that, so long as the allies are at Ari Burnu and Seddul-Bahr, other landing operations elsewhere are unlikely. The allies landed on the peninsula under the cover of a naval artillery fire, the violence of which has not yet been forgotten by the Turks. To have the same experience on some other part of the European or Asiatic coast does not appeal to the Turks.

Allied Artillery Less Active.

Meanwhile the naval and land artillery of the allies is no longer as active as it has been in the past. The action radius of both arms has been greatly limited by the nearness to one another of the opposing trenches. Several weeks ago the Turks and allies tried to make bombardment of the other side's trenches easy and safe by marking their own trenches with little white signs. The first step in this direction was taken by the Turks. But the allies soon discovered what had been done and placed similar signs along their trenches. Then the British and French trenches were marked with a light yellow sign for the guidance of the allied naval and land artillery. The Turks learned of this and placed similar signs along their own trenches. Several bombardments attempted after that led to shelling one's own positions. Since then the trench has become the safest place against artillery fire near the front.

SPANISH CHURCH DEDICATED

Archbishop Glennon Conducts Exercises at New Edifice on Blow Street.

The Church of Our Good Lady, Virginia and Blow street, established for members of a Spanish settlement in that neighborhood, was dedicated yesterday by Archbishop Glennon. The solemn high mass was celebrated by the pastor, the Rev. Jose Pico Jover, a refugee from Mexico.

There are about 400 Spanish and Mexican families in the parish.

MEXICANS ATTACK U. S. CAVALRYMEN, KILL 1, WOUND 2

Border Patrol in Fight Before Daybreak West of Brownsville.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 13.—One United States trooper was killed and two others wounded, one probably fatally, when a gang of Mexicans early today attacked the American patrol of seven men at an irrigation pumping plant several miles up the river from this point.

The soldier killed was Private Kraft, who received a wound through the head. Private Forney was shot through the back and is expected to die. Private Walsh also was wounded, but his condition is not considered serious. The men were from Troop C, Twelfth Cavalry.

The firing was heard by nearby detachments, who located it at the pumping plant on the Los Indios project, but assistance, which was rushed to the beleaguered men, came too late.

The squad of troopers was fired upon from the darkness by a gang estimated at 40 in number. It is thought that the outlaws have crossed into Mexico.

Immediately upon receipt of a report of a fight, Col. A. P. Blocksom, commanding at Fort Brown, left for the scene to make an investigation.

Before leaving, Col. Blocksom issued orders doubling the United States army guard both at the international ferry and the international bridge here, lest a renewal of the border warfare occur.

Col. Blocksom has requested Gen. E. P. Nefarrate, commanding in Matamoros, to arrest two Mexicans on the charge that they are known as the ringleaders in recent troubles on the Lower Rio Grande. The men have been reported seen frequently in Matamoros.

VILLA TELLS WHY URBINA WAS SHOT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Confirmation of the execution of Gen. Thomas Urbina by Gen. Villa was received directly from Gen. Villa today by Enrique Llorente, his agent here. In explanation of Urbina's execution, Gen. Villa sent this statement:

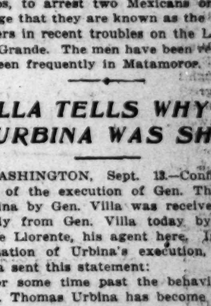

For some time past the behavior of Gen. Thomas Urbina has become intolerable because, without any scruples whatever, he executed all persons who incurred his displeasure. Of his acts he gave of late no account whatever to headquarters, nor to any authorities whom he was obliged to respect and obey.

"Under these conditions, and taking into consideration the increasing insubordination and cruelty of Gen. Urbina, and the propaganda of disintegration that he was conducting in the very body of the convention army under my command, and his complete lack of respect for the life and property of natives and foreigners, I deemed it proper to interview him, for the present impressing upon him the necessity of an immediate change in actions and behavior. With this end in view, I started for his ranch at Mieves, Durango, accompanied by a bodyguard, but meeting with shots from Urbina and his staff, who had entrenched themselves in his house, I proceeded in the most adequate manner under the circumstances, compelling them to surrender, after which his execution was ordered by a court-martial held on the spot.

"The execution of Gen. Urbina plucks from the root a constant peril for the region which had been under his control. The execution was caused entirely by the many assassinations ordered by Gen. Urbina, particularly in San Luis Potosi, proof of which I had just received and which moved me to make the decision which I carried out."

YOUNG SANTLEY'S "ALL OVER TOWN" A SPARKLING SHOW

Frank Moulan Chief Comedian of Production Which Opens Shubert Season.

By CARLOS F. HURD.

JOSEPH SANTLEY, 23 years old, and Frank Moulan, who was amusing St. Louisans at Uhrig's Cave when Santley was an infant, opened the Shubert Theater's season last night with a performance of Faust," made over in revue form and adapted to cabaret use. It is called "All Over Town." By any other name, it would be as sparkling in dance and song, as varied in costume, and would set Messrs. Goethe and Gounod to rotating in their tombs just as rapidly.

Santley, at the aforementioned age of 23, is author, producer and star, after the fashion of George M. Cohan. He sings and dances well, but the best thing he does is the selecting of his company. He could hardly have found a better comedian than Frank Moulan, of happy "Sultan of Sulu" memory. But he could have given Moulan more of an opportunity. Moulan's part, as a modified Mephisto, starts well, and in the first act he gets some excellent effects. But in the second act his part subsides into repetition, at the very place where, by some reversal of his semi-satanic fortunes, he might have been enabled to do his best work.

It does not appear that this mistake is due to any wish, on Santley's part, to shine at the expense of a veteran of fun like Moulan. Santley shows a desire to make his show effective in every part, and he watches his fellow players as a football captain watches his men. Experience will add finish to his product as show-maker, without, it is to be hoped, destroying the buoyant enthusiasm which does so much to atone for defects of the present work.

But no lack of experience, or of expertness, is to be traced in the gowning of the young women of this company. The rapidly changing costumes are of the sort which a man can only view with wonder, and which, if his wife sits beside him taking notes, may be due cause for financial alarm. Beatrice Allen, who is in every way qualified to wear beautiful clothes, wears the most elaborate of these costumes.

Arthur Hohl as Marble Dome, scientific detective, does good comedy work, and his bacteriological ballad, setting forth the deadly danger of eating anything whatever, is the song hit of the performance. Frederick Santley is a likable chap, resembling his brother in appearance. The management ought to offer a prize for the best guess as to which is the older of these two brothers.

Two changes are noticeable at the Shubert this season—the disappearance of girl ushers, who have been replaced by high school boys, and the replacing of the old-style book program with a business-like four-page thumb-paper, which tells about the show, and nothing else.

Hand-Embroidered "Philippine" Lingerie

As Beautiful as French Handwork, at About Half the Cost

These garments are made of fine nainsook, woven in this country, and which is finer than the usual French lingerie cloth.

The garments were cut over our own patterns, and then sent to the Philippines to be embroidered there because the natives embroider so beautifully, and the cost so little.

Then these unmade Embroidered Patterns were sent back to us, and we had the seams and the hems sewed by hand.

Special—Nightgowns, $1.50

Three hundred Women's Nightgowns, of fine nainsook—Empire style, with embroidered sprays and knots, lace edge on neck and sleeves. While the quantity lasts, $1.50.

Philippine Nightgowns at $2.98

Made of sheer nainsook, in slip-over style, with hand-embroidered design across the front, hand-scallops, eyelets and hand-sewn.

Special—Crepe de Chine Chemises, $2.50

Envelope Chemises, of very finest quality crepe de chine, in flesh color or white—strap shoulders—trimmed or hemstitched.

Crepe de Chine Nightgowns at $2.95

Come in flesh color and white—trimmed in shadow Valenciennes lace and beading.

FLAG WAVING AND CHEERING GONE AS CANADA MAKES WAR FIRST BUSINESS OF NATION

Grim Determination Takes Place of Enthusiasm, While Farm Movement Depopulates Cities, Converts Town Lots Into Potato Patches and Wheat Fields and Saves Business.

By EARL HARDING,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, Sept. 11.—How is Canada meeting the far crisis? What is going on behind the screaen of the censorship that is more nearly a wall than the imaginary line dividing Canada from the United States?

When your neighbor's house is burning down, it isn't quite neighborly nor natural to continue obliviously gazing at the reflection in the sky from a distant conflagration. But tha is wha we have been doing in he United States—too busy watching Europe to pay much or any attention to the 8,000,000 people who are most like us of any other nation, our nearest neighbors, our best customers—and we theirs.

Remember that one-eighth of Canada's population has migrated from the United States since 1900! that they live under social and political and economic conditions very similar to our own; that war affects them as it would us, and that Canadians are answering today questions we may be asking ourselves tomorrow.

Canada was unprepared, secure in her isolation, busy growing big and making money, without a thought of world conflict.

When Europe boiled over, I happened to be sojourning in Montreal and Ottawa, and saw for myself how the Dominion answered the first call of the mother country. I saw an unmilitary and peaceful people swept off their feet by martial enthusiasm; men marching, bands playing, British flags flying, the populace wildly cheering as Canada went to war.

Thirty-five thousand men volunteered, were equipped, given preliminary training and started overseas in six weeks. Men fought for the places in the recruiting lines. Sons of millionaires went as officers if they could, as privates if they must—but they went. Some appeared at the mobilization in their motors and enlisted their valets or chauffeurs as fellow privates, paid to wait on them in camp.

Changes of a Year.

On the anniversary of the declaration of war I returned to find the superficial aspects of Canada marvelously changed. The flags, the music, the cheering crowds, the enthusiasm, the dash, the color are gone.

You may travel for squares in any of the large cities of the Dominion without seeing a union jack. When you do find one, it will most likely be background for a window exhibit of Canadian-made shrapnel shells or war trophies from the front. But flag-waving does not always express the deepest national emotion.

In three weeks I heard "Britannia" just once—and without applause—and the British national anthem only on the war anniversary. Orchestras that a year ago were playing "Tipperary" and "Wearing of the Green" to the cheers of diners in evening dress, grind out colorless classics that sound like dirges.

Hotel dining rooms that were centers of life and gayety have been nearly deserted by women, and evening clothes for men have almost disappeared. During three weeks in Canada's best hotels and clubs I saw one man dressed for dinner. I counted 12 women at dinner one evening in a Montreal hotel where a year ago there were 100 or 200. The breakfast room of this hotel now accommodates the dinner crowd; the bar, which used to be lined three deep, is mocked by empty chairs and tables, and 250 occupied rooms out of 800 is not unusual, although at the crest of the tourist season.

The Plea for Recruits.

Posters from the British War Office and various appeals devised to meet local conditions confront you on billboards and in windows—such placards as this:

KITCHENER'S WARNING.
London, July 13, 1915.

We require more men, and still more men. The military position of the nation today is serious. Make no mistake—this will be a long war.—Kitchener.

Recruiting tents have been staked out in Montreal parks. In Ottawa a recruiting agent in civilian clothes makes the rounds of the park benches daily, asking each idle man if he wants a job. Toronto gives force to her appeal by sending a recruiting officer on wheels over the tramway tracks. Convalescent soldiers from the front address street corner meetings at night. Recruiting Sergeants make periodical visits to the small towns. Members of the Cabinet and other political leaders are campaigning up and down the country for recruits, and still more recruits.

But it is all done soberly and without noise.

There is no longer a demonstration when Tommy Atkins goes away to the war. He slips silently down to the water front or the railroad station after midnight or in the dull gray of dawn to avoid the scenes that attended the first embarkations.

The war has become personal and real since 11,000 Canadians have fallen, but you see no signs of mourning. It's all rot to say that "Canada is too far away to feel the war." On the desk of nearly every prominent man I visited was the photograph of a son or brother or nephew or close friend who is at the front or has fallen.

Boy Scouts Aid Enlistment.

Why, Canada is just settling down to the serious business of the war! Sobered and sorrowful, yes; but determined—"grimly determined!" The effervescence has run out; the shouting is over; "business as usual" has given way to "war, the first business of the nation;" the young fellow who imagined war was a joy ride went early to the front; enlistment has slowed down; physical standards have had to be lowered and a wife's consent for her husband's enlistment has been waived; the man who is volunteering now is the man who believes his time to go has arrived and that he can't any longer stay home with his conscience—or his neighbor's. Boy Scouts parading with signs, "If you don't go, we will have to," and the children of soldiers bearing on banners, "My dad's at the front. Is yours?" have made it not easy to stay at home.

The finance executive or one of Canada's greatest corporations said to me: "I have three nephews and one brother in it—one killed and one wounded so far. It may be my turn to go next, and I shall go."

"How's that; you are beyond the age limit, surely?"

"Yes, several years; but I wouldn't give a damn for a man who wouldn't fight or couldn't tell a lie for his country. We may all have to go, but if we are needed we shall be there to the last man and with the last dollar. This is the spirit of all Canada."

I was making the rounds of the recruiting stations one night with Col. ——. "How did they come today?" "Only fair," responded the recruiting officer. "Had to turn down the best man today because he was 46, and he wanted the worst way to go; would have made a bully soldier."

"Next time that happens," said the Colonel, "tell him to go home and look in the family Bible and see if he hasn't made a mistake. Sure that man was under 45? Remember, the King and country need him!"

A light came into the recruiting officer's eyes. "I see, sir, and I'll remember," he said, as he clicked his heels together and saluted.

Enlistment to date of nearly 130,000 men has reduced the supply of labor, which was much greater than the demand in the business depression preceding the war. Besides these, many reservists of the allied nations have returned to Europe. Six thousand Austrians and Germans have been interned. Practical cessation of immigration, excepting from the United States, has afforded further relief.

Back to Land Movement.

A "back to the land" movement was inaugurated with the slogal "Patriotism and Production—More Than Usual." Immigration offices throughout Canada were converted into employment agencies to send destitute men to the farms. The Minister of Agriculture issued the "Agriculture War Book" of 160 pages containing alluring statistics of profit from farming and appeals to farmers' patriotism. A large corps of speakers were sent to urge increase of acreage and livestock, so that the fighting men might be fed and the nation might have resources for its war chest.

The result has been an increased acre-

Basement

age in grain alone of 20 per cent. The year's production in all classes of agriculture is estimated by the Minister of Agriculture to be 30 to 40 per cent more than that of 1914, and the greatest by far in Canada's history. Better preparation of the soil, combined with the most favorable season since 1909, has resulted in a crop now being harvested, worth upward of $800,000,000.

This is one of the outstanding consequences of the war; it has brought Canada back to fundamentals, depopulated the cities, converted town lots into potato patches and wheat fields, and returned thousands of men, women and children to the soil. Winnipeg, Edmonton, Regina, Vancouver and other Western boom cities have each lost from 5000 to 50,000 population.

All Canada has watched the weather since June and waited, breathless, for the success or failure of the wheat crop. The third week in August saw it secure. Some manufacturing plants that had been idle or on part time—including International Harvester—resumed then on full time; country merchants placed orders they had held back for months; jobbers and manufacturers felt immediately the impulse of new business. Railroads, anticipating a big harvest, had all their forces harnessed and ready. Strain on the railroads is more severe than in the United States, since harvest is a month later, and the season of navigation short.

Harvest hands will be plentiful. To meet any shortage the Government has granted leaves of absence to 30,000 enlisted men in the military camps; they may retain their harvest pay and will receive their soldiers' stipend on reporting for duty.

The general financial situation will be presented in a later article, but it should be said here that Canadian banks have more money than before the war, and that crop-moving cash is plentiful.

The general business sentiment of Canada is more optimistic now than it has been at any time in the last 18 months. The impetus from munitions and war supply contracts has only just begun to be felt. The Canadian steel industry did not become really prosperous until July. Every steel plant in Canada is now booked to capacity for the next year, and at prices higher than obtain in this country. Steel for domestic use is being imported—when it can be obtained. Nickel and copper mining is again flourishing.

Fortunes in "War Stocks."

Fortunes have been made already in the advance of Canada's small group of "war stocks." The Montreal and Toronto stock exchanges reopened shortly after New York, but are still operating under minimum prices established after the war. Some of the "war stocks" have doubled and trebled, but measured by actual values have not yet begun to score the advance recorded by some of the "war babies" of the United States. Thirty leading Canadian stocks have appreciated in market value close to $100,000,000, but this is still nearly $200,000,000 below their selling price at the height of the Canadian stock market boom of 1912. Crop money, amounting to $300,000,000 more than last year, will soon be felt in general business. The stock market will get its share.

Liquor Sales Fall Off.

A survey of the business situation undertaken early in the summer by the Canadian Northern Railroad shows a sound revival of trade throughout the country. Two thousand business men representative of every group dealt with in Government census reports responded to the Canadian Northern's questions. Less than 10 per cent reported a gloomy outlook. A large proportion expressed faith in the return of normal business with the harvesting of a big crop. Supplementary inquiries were sent in August, and the replies were, with very few exceptions, optimistic.

Purveyors of luxuries, liquors and tobacco do not find much encouragement in the habits of economy established by the war. It is no longer discreditable in Canada to be thrifty. Consumption of spirits fell off 800,000 gallons, 40,000,000 fewer cigars and 27,000,000 fewer cigarettes were consumed in the last fiscal year, ended March 31. A comparison for the full year of the war with the year preceding would show a still greater decrease in consumption.

Heavy excise and import taxes for war revenue accounts only in part for Canada's abstention. The country is not far behind some parts of the United States in the prohibition movement. In Nova Scotia only Halifax sells liquor. In Quebec and Ontario—including Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa—saloons close at 11 p. m. and aSturdays at 7 p. m. More than 200 municipalities in Canada have voted "dry."

Per capita consumption of liquors was increasing until the war. But for the year ended last March it was reduced to .872 gallon, as compared with 1.116 for the fiscal year ended March, 1914. Beer consumption dropped from 7.2 to 6.071 gallons per capita; wines from 1.124 to 1.118. Tobacco consumption fell from 3.711 pounds per capita to 2.462.

The automobile industry has prospered surprisingly. Some men converted their touring cars into jitneys, but there was a larger number than ever of medium-priced cars sold. Ontario Province issued nearly 10,000 more licenses the niast year.

Trade Increases and Decreases.

The latest available statistics of imports are for the year ended May, 1915. Some of the striking increases, as compared with the year ended May, 1914, are: Iron and steel manufactures, from $108,797,608 to $59,758,759; carriages, cars, etc., $12,559,743 to $7,430,687; spirits and wines, from $6,987,027 to $4,844,014; precious stones, $2,026,756 to $1,618,222; watches, $1,459,581 to $821,770; musical instruments, $2,143,236 to $1,230,362.

Sugar imports, despite a war tax of 1 cent a pound—which raised the duty to 2.07 cents—have increased in value from $18,252,440 to $18,890,947.

Coffee imports, war-taxed 3 cents a pound, but formerly on the free list, fell from $3,329,639 to $1,764,841, while imports of tea, on which no war tax was levied, increased in value from $4,252,-227 to $7,561,950.

The quick decline in Canada's buying power shows in merchandise imports for 12-month periods ended May: 1913, $573,614,615; 1914, $391,340,062; 1915, $326,120,-197.

But the export business, due to war orders, improved. The total for the 12 months ended May, 1914, was $403,696,990; for 1915, $464,952,579. The principal increases were: Leather and manufactures, mainly saddlery and other war equipment, from $3,809,239 to $11,663,905; iron and steel manufactures, $11,663,009 to $26,856,783; provisions, $25,140,237 to $45,683,098; wheat, flour, $19,984,514 to $26,-610,870; wood pulp, $6,567,510 to $9,814,461; horses, $816,701 to $3,271,063.

Canada had a small wheat crop in 1914, so that its exports of wheat, despite high prices, amounted to only $74,-227,732, compared with $112,842,505 for the year before the war. This season's export wheat will bring probably $175,000,-000.

Aid to St. Louis Fur Market.

The war's effect upon the fur trade is indicated by a reduction of exports by half—from $5,515,563 to $2,848,336. No industry in Canada was more completely paralyzed by the war. The Hudson's Bay Co., which operate great department stores in the Northwestern cities, as well as trading posts in the North, shut off the winter's supply of provisions for the Indian trappers whom that "company of merchant adventurers" has exploited for years. The Indians were left to the charity of the Arctic winter and the benevolence of the Government.

So unlike the attitude of Canadian capital was this conduct of the fur monopolists that Canadians do not attempt to excuse it excepting on the score of stupidity of a Board of Directors in London too far from the scene to have any sympathy. The fur trade, however, has had its serious problems. British, Russian and French fur merchants have been striving since the war to establish their independence of the Leipsic fur market and the erman dye monopoly. One result will be to make New York and St. Louis more important centers of the fur trade and to divert to the United States temporarily, at least, a considerable part of the fur manufacturing of Germany.

The lumber business has been very stagnant for the past year, due mainly to depression of the building trades. With harvest prosperity returning to the prairie provinces the demand for lumber in British Columbia has improved. n increased demand for timber lands has been noted in the Northwest. How nearly irgin still are the wonderful timber resources of British Columbia is emphasized by such an incident as the recent report of timber cruisers that they had discovered -00,000 acres of unalienated crown lands on Vancouver Island, not inaccessible, and carrying a billion and a half feet of valuable timber.

Nova Scotia and Newfoundland lumbermen have found a new market in England for mine props and in France for timber for the allied armies. Their difficulty is shortage of shipping and excessive rates. It has brought small sailing vessels into the Transatlantic lumber trade. Eastern Canada also has attempted in a small way to compete for South American lumber business.

Logging operations will continue this winter on about the scale of last year—50 per cent of the normal. Canadian rivers are congested with logs and mills are stocked with unsold lumber. Prices, however, have been fairly well maintained, since price-cutting does not seem to create a market.

No Ruinous Competition.

It is one of the seeming anomalies born of the war, noticeable in many lines of industry and trade, that stagnant markets have not led to ruinous competition, nor has unemployment brought drastic cuts in wages.

Business the country over has been placed nearer a cash basis. Especially in the Northwest credit was abused ridiculously. Seventy-five per cent of certain lines of business was on a long-time basis; now about the same proportion is for cash. Merchants, large and small have acquired the habit of ordering stocks sparingly and doing business for cash. That habit probably will outlast the war several years.

Books, especially in the Northwest, have fallen into the luxury class. One publisher reports that many booksellers in British Columbia have had to go out of business. The leading bookstore in one of the far West cities recently displayed a sign offering its windows for rent for $5 a day to help pay expenses. Novels scarcely sell at all, but books on the war are in good demand. People still read. Public libraries show tremendous increase in circulation, especially in the cities where unemployment has been most prevalent.

Redmen at Grave of a Founder.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Three thousand members of the Improved Order of Redmen attended the opening of the sixteenth annual grand council here today. Services were held by the council in Lincoln Park at the grave of David Kennison, one of the founders of the order and the last surviving member of the Boston tea party. He died in Chicago at the age of 116 years.

Chicago Shoe Manufacturer Hurt.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Charles H. Schwab, a shoe manufacturer who was injured in an automobile accident here yesterday, will recover, it was stated today. Schwab, who is 79 years old, suffered a broken shoulder blade when he was thrown out of his machine against a curb.

Texan Kills Woman and Himself.

YOAKUM, Tex., Sept. 13.—Albert Find, 55 years old, a widower, shot and killed Mrs. Henrietta Robe, 50, a widow, when he met her on her way to church yesterday and then killed himself. The theory has been advanced that Mrs. Robe refused Find's proposal of marriage.

Resinol makes sick skins well

No matter how long you have been tortured and disfigured by itching, burning, raw or scaly skin humors, just put a little of that soothing, antiseptic Resinol Ointment on the sores and the suffering stops right there! Healing begins that very minute, and in almost every case your skin gets well so quickly you feel ashamed of the money you threw away on useless treatments.

Resinol Ointment contains nothing that could injure or irritate the tenderest skin. It clears away pimples and blackheads, and is a most reliable household dressing for sores, chafings, cuts, burns, etc. Sold by all druggists. For trial free, write to Dept. 16-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Princess von Buelow's Mother Dies.

BOLOGNA, Italy, Sept. 13.—Donna Laura Minghetti, widow of Marco Minghetti, successor of Cavour as Prime Minister of Italy, is dead at her home here. She was the mother of Princess von Buelow, wife of the German Ambassador to Italy until the latter country entered the war, and also of Prince di Camporeale, by her first husband.

The sunlit mill where Valier's Enterprise Flour is made, is a huge, big windowed building, away out in the open, far off from all factories; where the air is pure and clean and where sunlight can reach it from all sides.

Valier's Enterprise Flour

Valier's Enterprise Flour sometimes costs a little more by the sack; yet because it goes so much further in baking it really costs less; and when bread made from Valier's Enterprise Flour is always whiter, lighter, tastier and more nutritious and stays sweet and moist longer. MAJOR CREATES A NEW JOB FOR HIS SECRETARY

Zach Patterson to Be Assistant Counsel of Public Service Commisssion at $3600 a Year.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 13.—Official announcement was made today that Gov. Major had created a new State job with a salary of $3600 a year for his private secretary, Zach Patterson.

The position is Assistant Counsel for the Missouri Public Service Commission, four of the five members of which are lawyers, and which has an attorney.

The announcement came as a surprise to State officials. The appointment technically was made by William G. Busby, counsel of the commission, but it is known to have been dictated by Gov. Major.

There is a political significance to the appointment from the fact that Patterson has been active in supporting the candidacy of Judge Graves of the Supreme Court for Governor. It is now generally believed that Judge Graves will not be a candidate. Patterson has been so active for Judge Graves that it generally is talked that he could not hope for favor at the hands of any other candidate.

Admitted to Bar in 1911.

Patterson came to Jefferson City in 1906 from Bates County as stenographer for Judge Graves. He studied law while employed in that capacity and was admitted to the bar in 1911. Shortly afterward he went to Caruthersville, Mo., where he entered a law office. After a few months he returned to Jefferson City as an Assistant Attorney-General under Attorney-General Major.

He remained there for the few closing months of the administration, helping in the Major-for-Governor campaign. He also briefed several criminal cases.

Except for the few months at Caruthersville and in the Attorney-General's office Patterson's experience consisted principally of that obtained from doing clerical work. As a lawyer he never has handled a case of importance.

He has served as private secretary to the Governor since Gov. Major became Governor.

The appointment of Patterson is taken by politicians to mean that the suport of the Major administration is to be thrown to Chairman John M. Atkinson of the Commission for Governor.

Passes It Up to Governor.

Chairman Atkinson recently told a Post-Dispatch reporter that all employes of the commission were appointed without consideration being given their politics, and solely from the standpoint of experience and merit. He said there never had been political influence successfully brought to bear on the commission in the matter of appointments.

When asked about that today the chairman said the new position was created and filled by the Governor personally.

"It will be a part of Patterson's duties," he said, "to examine the railroad valuations made by the Interstate Commerce Commission and report to the Governor, who will have 30 days to file protests if he believes the valuations erroneous."

Newton Williams, proprietor of a newspaper at Shelbina, Mo., a clerk in the Governor's office, was appointed private secretary to succeed Patterson.

SUES TO ANNUL MARRIAGE ON HEARING HUSBAND HAS 2 WIVES

Woman's Attorney Says Frederick Rathman Denies He Was Married Before.

Mrs. Emma Rathmann of 2357 South Compton avenue filed a suit in Circuit Court this morning to annul her marriage to Frederick Rathmann, a carpenter, 2101 South Jefferson avenue. She asks for the restoration of her maiden name, Bormann. She alleges that they were married March 31 last and that on May 15 she learned her husband had another wife, Mrs. Dora Sorger, 1112 Brasa avenue, Brentwood, from whom he was not divorced.

Her attorney, William L. Bohnenkamp, said an uncle of Mrs. Rathmann saw the other woman and she told him she was married to Rathmann May 15, 1910, that they had two children and that she retained her marriage certificate. Later, Bohnenkamp said, she refused to exhibit the certificate. The lawyer declared Rathmann denied he was married before he married Miss Bormann. Rathmann could not be reached this morning for a statement.

STRANGE SKIN DISEASE EPIDEMIC IN STATE PRISON

300 Convicts Said to Have Affection Which Baffles Skill of Physicians There.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 13.—An epidemic of a strange skin disease, which is said to have baffled the skill of physicians, is sweeping through the Missouri penitentiary, it became known today, in spite of efforts of prison officials to prevent knowledge of the epidemic from becoming public.

The disease, which first appeared in the prison two weeks ago, has spread rapidly, and authoritative information obtained by the Post-Dispatch is that 300 convicts are suffering from it.

Because of the rapidity with which the disease spread and the large number of cases in the prison before its seriousness was realized, isolation of the men suffering from it has been impossible.

The disease is said to resemble somewhat the Cuban itch. There is an eruption over almost the entire body, which is very painful and annoying. The convicts who have the disease are not able to work.

It was stated to the Post-Dispatch that prison officials feared that the disease would spread to almost all the 2300 convicts.

It is reported that the prison physician and other doctors he has called into consultation have been unable to make a satisfactory diagnosis, as the symptoms are different from those attending skin diseases with which the physicians are familiar.

EMERY DUST SAID TO HAVE BEEN FOUND IN AMERICAN LINER'S OIL

Engines of the St. Louis Reported to Have Been Damaged on Trip From New York—Inquiry to Be Made.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—There is a widespread rumor in maritime circles that the American liner St. Louis was damaged on her last voyage to Liverpool by the placing of emery dust in the lubricating oil for her engines.

She sailed from Liverpool after being berthed for 20 days. Capt. John C. Jamison and the other officers of the ship refused to say anything about the trouble when she arrived here yesterday. P. A. S. Franklin, head of the International Mercantile Marine, of which the American Line is a part, when asked about the report, said he could not state what the trouble was. An investigation was to be made.

The four vessels of the American Line, the St. Paul, St. Louis, Philadelphia and New York, fly the American flag, and none has carried war munitions since the war began. Their cargoes have consisted solely of noncontraband supplies.

NUMBER OF DEPOSITORS

The number and character of the depositors of a bank are another indication of its strength and worth. Consider not alone how many, but what kind of people have selected a bank.

Over 26,000 of the most conservative savers of St. Louis are depositors in our savings department alone. Over 40,000 people of St. Louis have deposits of various kinds in this bank.

EASY WAY TO MAKE HAIR ATTRACTIVE

Ladies who find trouble in properly or attractively arranging and dressing their hair should try using a little Parisian Sage twice daily for a while and note the remarkable improvement. Parisian Sage, which can be obtained from Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., or any drug counter, makes the hair soft, lustrous, fluffy and wavy, takes out the dull, lifeless appearance, dissolves the dandruff and stimulates the hair roots into healthy normal action. Instead of merely sprinkling the hair, it should be rubbed right into the scalp with the finger tips. Parisian Sage is a delightful treatment for both hair and scalp, cannot possibly injure the hair and is very inexpensive.

TEN YOUNG MEN INJURED WHEN AUTOS COLLIDE

Son of Bank President, Who Was Driving One Machine, Is in Serious Condition.

Oliver W. Feuerbacher, 21-year-old son of Frank W. Feuerbacher of 3635 Flora boulevard, president of the Southern Commercial and Savings Bank, is at the city hospital in a critical condition as a result of an automobile collision at Lindell boulevard and Taylor avenue, in which he and nine young men companions were injured at 5 a. m. yesterday.

Feuerbacher's skull is fractured and he has concussion of the brain. An application has been made by the police for a warrant charging him with careless driving.

According to the police report Feuerbacher and his companions were returning from Campbell's Forest Home, a St. Louis County roadhouse, when the accident occurred.

Feuerbacher Was Driving.

With Feuerbacher at the wheel, his machine crashed into an automobile driven by James B. Bergs of 5045 Westminster place, an advertising solicitor for the Banner Buggy Co. With Bergs was Frederick W. Gardner, son of Russell E. Gardner, president of the buggy company.

Bergs told the police he was running west on Lindell boulevard and the Feuerbacher machine was coming east. Bergs turned south into Taylor avenue. The Feuerbacher car struck Bergs' automobile squarely in the middle, knocking it about 15 feet, but did not upset it.

All of the 10 occupants of the Feuerbacher car were thrown to the street. Feuerbacher landed on his head, the impact fracturing his skull at the frontal bone.

At the city hospital this morning Feuerbacher was conscious only at short intervals. While trying to tell of the accident he would lapse into unconsciousness.

"I can't remember much," he said. "We had been in the county. I was coming down a street—I don't know what street—when another machine jumped right in front of me. I tried to swerve to avoid hitting it. The next I remember I was in the hospital."

Bergs was cut by flying glass. Gardner was not hurt.

All of the nine companions of Feuerbacher were cut and bruised, but none was seriously injured. They told the police they were R. E. Manion, 3878A Wyoming street; Leonard Watkins, Chicago; Raphael Graves, Duluth, Minn., a student at the Christian Brothers' College; William Douglas, 3215 Wyoming street; William H. Drach, 3538 Humphrey street; Wilfert W. Beneke, 3648 Humphrey street; Oscar Wagner, 3504 Humphrey street, and Robert Belbrink.

CRIES FOR HELP THOUGHT TO BE JOKE AND YOUTH IS DROWNED

He Had Plunged From Raft Into Pond—Bather Goes Down in the Mississippi.

Two swimmers were drowned yesterday afternoon in waters near St. Louis.

Walter Klose, 18 years old, of 3710A Michigan avenue, went beyond his depth in the Mississippi River at the foot of Potomac street, while bathing with five companions. He was carried out into the channel by a swift undercurrent and sank before aid could reach him.

Before Klose left home, his sister, Mrs. Paula Schuler, begged him not to go swimming in the river, as she feared he would be drowned. His body was not recovered. He wore a borrowed bathing suit with the initials M. Z.

Frederick B. Endicott, 19 years old, 4433 Racecourse avenue, was drowned in a pond on the farm of Fred Fisher, his uncle, near Oakville, St. Louis County.

Endicott, his mother, his brother, Daniel, and his sister, Louise, went to the Fisher home to spend the day. With several companions he had been fishing. While they remained on shore, he paddled across the pond on a raft, from which he plunged into the water for a swim. His companions heard him calling for help, but knowing he was a good swimmer, they thought he was joking. When they realized they were mistaken it was too late to save him. Coroner Bopp said Endicott was seized with cramps.

FINDS BURGLAR AT HIS HOME

By the Time Police Clerk Summons Patrolmen, Man Disappears.

Robert Kreutzer, a tracing clerk at Police Headquarters, upon arriving at his home, 3808 South Compton avenue, at 1:30 o'clock this morning, saw a burglar trying to unlock the kitchen door. Kreutzer crept up behind him, but as he was ascending the steps the burglar turned upon him with a revolver. Kreutzer ran to the nearest patrol box and telephoned to the Wyoming Street Station.

When patrolmen accompanied him home the burglar had disappeared.

Funeral of Sir William Van Horne.

MONTREAL, Sept. 13.—The funeral of Sir William Van Horne, former chairman of the board of directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be held from the home tomorrow. The body will be sent to Joliet, Ill., for burial.

5 HOMES ENTERED BY "FLASHLIGHT" NEGRO BURGLAR

Screams of Women Frighten Intruder Away at Each Place —Few Articles Taken.

A "flashlight" burglar, who was frightened from three West End homes by women Friday night, again made his apearance at five homes early yesterday morning.

At 4 a. m. Mrs. W. J. Thompson of 4566 Washington boulevard was awakened by a noise and saw a negro examining the fingers of her 12-year-old daughter. He had thrown the rays of his flashlight on Miss Thompson's hands and was evidently searching for rings.

Mrs. Thompson screamed and the burglar fled, taking a ring from Mrs. Thompson's room, $7 from the trousers of A. N. Olson, a roomer, and $8.80 from the trousers of Mrs. Thompson's husband.

Mrs. Charles P. Lennox of 4417 Laclede avenue, saw the rays of a flashlight flitting about her room at 5 o'clock. She remained silent until she made out the form of a man behind the light. Then she screamed and the intruder fled, taking a gold watch.

Mrs. Clark H. Whiteside of the Bonair Apartments, 4537 McPherson avenue, saw the flashlight about 5:15 a. m. A bracelet and $5 in money were stolen.

Miss Louise Alexander, a guest of Mrs. Alice Smith, 4606 Delmar boulevard, was awakened at 4 o'clock by a negro who was throwing a flashlight about her room. She called to Mrs. Smith and the burglar fled without taking anything.

Mrs. Arsula Weise of 4617 Delmar boulevard, was awakened by a negro half an hour later. He jumped through a back window when she screamed. Arthur Dasy and Joseph Hamilton, roomers, later missed $6 and $3.15, respectively, from their trousers.

GET NEW KIDNEYS!

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail in their work of filtering out and throwing off the poisons developed in the system, things begin to happen.

One of the first warnings is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back; loss of appetite, indigestion, irritation, or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded and fatal malady, Bright's Disease, for which there is said to be no cure.

You can almost certainly find immediate relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unfailing remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not give you almost immediate relief, your money will be refunded. Prices, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Be sure you get the GOLD MEDAL brand. None other genuine.—ADVERTISEMENT.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Politics in the Postoffices.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The widespread dissatisfaction existing among the postal workers, which the general public only hears through the St. Louis postoffice, brings the issue clearly to the front. Is the United States postofice to be conducted in a business way, as it is in all other civilized countries, or is it to be used by petty politicians to feather their own nests, at the expense of the people, and to furnish plums for their partisans.

As it is at present constituted, the civil service law is a farce and a delusion, and in order to hold their jobs under successive administrations, the postal workers have to play the game of politics or get out.

Business men who send out large quantities of mail daily, and who thus furnish the revenue upon which the Postmaster's salary is based, have less to say about the conduct of the postoffice, which is vitally concerned with the success of their business, than ward politicians, who never contributed a cent in their lives to the support of the Government.

It is about time that the responsible business men assert their rights in this matter and oust the petty politicians who now serve as postmasters and put in their places men of ability, whose sole regard is for the improvement of the service and the expeditious dispatch of the mails.

East St. Louis, Ill. CIVIL SERVICE.

The Tipping Trust.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Have been reading about the Tipping Trust. Does it not seem ridiculous that a patron should be held up and compelled to pay for the privilege of doing business with a firm. Other business firms spend money to get business and gladly do so. Are the American people fools or cowards to be sandbagged that way?

Once in a while I used to tip waiters I knew. But they got the benefit. But not a cent of mine will the Tipping Trust ever get. G. M. N.

Grafters at Street Fairs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Street fairs are supposed to be operated for the purpose of calling the general public's attention to the merits of a street and the kind of business conducted by the progressive men in that locality, in order to enhance the value of its property and develop their business.

Unfortunately, some localities are abusing that privilege by a certain element getting together, styling themselves business men, who are not business men at all, but grafters, who mislead and deceive true business man, on that thoroughfare, and then promote a street fair, the only object in view being profit for the gambling saloon keeper (this does not apply to the respectable, law-abiding saloon keeper), and that following to raffle off hams, bacon, lard, chickens, ducks, geese, pigs flour, and such commodities that interfere with the regular merchants' business. Furthermore, as another loud shouter you will also find the lid club manager, expecting to be granted special privileges on Sunday, where you find young women drinking under the disguise of social and fraternal surroundings until intoxicated. Such a man is not a business man, but a law violator.

This does not belong to any carnival or street fair, and no business man, showman or amusement promoter ever encourages such tactics. Consequently, it is up to our officials to see that it is prohibited. A MERCHANT.

On the Downward Path.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Somewhere in the city of St. Louis on the evening of Sept. 8, 1915, a beautiful little girl of 3 knelt down by the bed. Folding her little hands she looked up to heaven and said: "Dear Lord, keep me safe through the night and bring father and mother together." And the next morning when I looked on that beautiful, innocent child, that had slept so peacefully through the night, I knew her first petition had been answered, and I knew the dear Lord that had answered her first petition would answer her second. God will surely bring her father and mother together. But how! and when? The parents are separated. On this particular night the mother was out until after 1 o'clock with another man. The father was out with another woman. But God will not forget that little prayer and sometime, down in the depths of hell, he will bring that father and mother together. Those we work for we must look forward to for pay, and the devil will reward that father and mother, and face to face they will reproach each other for all eternity—for causing each other to lose their souls.

As Billy Sunday says: "If we go to hell we drag someone down with us." Will they drag that little girl's soul down with them?

MARTHA.

NEW CONSTITUTION BUILDING.

The most novel feature of the proposed New York Constitution which will be submitted to the voters in November is the limitation it imposes on the appropriating power of the Legislature.

If the instrument is approved, New York will have a budget-making system similar to that which Mr. Taft and others have strongly urged for the general Government. The initiative in appropriating is vested in the Governor and his appointees. The budget they prepare may be reduced by the Legislature but not increased.

This plan for centering responsibility for public expenditures and lessening appalling wastes is, of course, almost exactly the same as that introduced by the new charter into St. Louis' municipal affairs. In fact, the most important changes for which the new Constitution provides follow the lines of recent charter making in St. Louis and other cities.

More than 150 independent State offices and bureaus are consolidated into 17 departments, the heads of which are appointed. Missouri has seven elective State officers, but St. Louis city elects only the Mayor, the Vice Mayor or President of the Aldermen and the Comptroller. If the new Constitution is adopted, New York will elect Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and an officer corresponding to Comptroller. Under a compromise in the convention the Attorney-General is also an elective officer, making four in all, but increased appreciation of the importance of the short ballot is indicated by the changes. The Governor is empowered to name his appointees without confirmation by holdup Senators.

The work of the convention was disappointing to many, but this was largely due to its failure to include other reforms for which a popular demand exists. In such innovations as it made, it took sure ground.

At least, in this State, a Constitution which, while retaining the progressive forms we now have, would embody those the New Yorkers will have a chance to indorse, would be deemed a great improvement by thoughtful Missourians.

In Missouri a Nepotic Republican administration is followed by a Nepotic Democratic administration. Is there no end to Nepots?

MILLION A DAY FO FARMERS.

The high temperatures may be uncomfortable and perhaps unseasonable, but think of what they are doing for the corn crop.

Weather like that of last week is worth $1,000,000 a day to the farmers of the corn belt and of the northern spring wheat belt, in both of which crops are backward this year.

Colored cultivators cultivating colored cotton in the Carolinas will be a century event.

THE $1,000,000 DOCK STRIKE.

The story of the $1,000,000 strike promoted among the 23,000 longshoremen of New York, published by the Post-Dispatch today, is perhaps the most serious of all recent attempts to create labor troubles in this country.

How this strike would be worth more than a strike of many times 23,000 munition makers for the purposes of foreign belligerents is easy to be seen. A tie-up of all shipping facilities at the chief port of the United States would prevent the export of the output of half the munition plants in the country.

Probably that number would be compelled to close down if the troubles on the docks were long continued. Of what use would it be to manufacture these commodities if they could not be sent to market? Food exports would also be checked.

As to the interest that promoted the strike, the presumption is most strong. Who else would benefit by it but the same foreign interest that has conspired to handicap other industry as a war measure to benefit European fighters? No fiction as to a diplomatic duty to make known the effect of foreign laws enters into this case. Honest labor on the docks is not prohibited by such laws.

Record should be made of the wise, patriotic course of the longshoremen's leaders under unusual temptation. Their refusal to act as the tools of the new diplomacy is one of the bright phases of the foreign propaganda in the United States.

British sovereigns are dropping into the American melting pot. Naturalizing gold is an easy process.

BRAND ST. LOUIS FURNITURE.

Mr. C. J. Kostuba's suggestion, embodied in a resolution at the April meeting of the St. Louis Furniture Board of Trade and again brought up at the August meeting, to the effect that all St. Louis-made furniture be stamped with a suitable trade-mark, should be carried out.

St. Louis has 46 furniture factories, with a total annual output valued at over $5,000,000. And St. Louis makes some of the handsomest, most artistic and most durable furniture to be found in any market. Its school, hospital, bank, hotel and car furniture is known everywhere.

An attractive and characteristic trade-mark would be a valuable advertising feature, both for St. Louis furniture men and for the city. It would help to put St. Louis-made furniture into every part of St. Louis' natural trade territory, and extend that territory still further.

VAN HORNE'S WORK IN CANADA.

William C. Van Horne, the Illinoisan, who created a national railroad system for Canada and amplified one for Cuba, was 40 years old when the Canadian Pacific, still uncompleted, grabbed him from a Wisconsin railroad and had had a prior operating experience in Illinois, Missouri and Michigan.

Being given large responsibilities in the Dominion, he set an excellent example by becoming a citizen of the country and identifying himself with its political as well as business and social interests. Both he and Thomas George Shaughnessy, the native Wisconsinian whom he took with him to Montreal, showed a weakness to which the typical American is generally immune. They accepted from London royal titles which, whatever diminished significance they may have in the old country, are absurd and even ridiculous in a new country like Canada.

Van Horne was the first of the many great railroad managers we have sent to the Dominion in exchange for J. J. Hill, an Ontario man. Before Van Horne's time most Dominion railroads were run on the English plan by men of intensely British sentiments sent from London The Grand Trunk continued the old system until it secured Charles M. Hays, whose introduction of successful American ways was cut short by the Titanic tragedy. This work on the Grand Trunk is now continued by Edwin J. Chamberlin, a New England man.

ORGANIZED ARSON IN ST. LOUIS.

The discovery of a local "Arson Trust," following the arrest of men who had hauled four barrels of gasoline to a manufacturing plant, may easily prove to be the most important service rendered by the Police Department during the year.

Operations by the gang on a scale greatly increasing the total of St. Louis fire losses may be suspected. Those losses and their influence on high insurance rates have been one of St. Louis' difficult problems. With the detection of the gang a decrease is naturally to be expected.

The amazing feature of the discovery is the apparent close connection between reputable insurance interests and the criminals who have destroyed property with peril to life and neutralized in part the large sums the city devotes to its elaborate system of fire protection. Not a few local fires seem to have been preceded by the placing of excessive insurance. The insurance representatives divided not only the commissions obtained on the premiums, but shared the indemnity paid in the adjustment, it is charged.

It is important both to the insurance companies and to the city that the exposure shall be thorough.

America is rallying to the coal-tar colors. We shall do and dye.

STANDARD OIL FOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

One of the outcomes of the strike at Bayonne, N. J., is the granting of the eight-hour day by the Standard Oil Co. to its employes.

Commenting on this, the Philadelphia Ledger makes the rather ungracious remark that "the consumer is the one who pays" for such benefits obtained by workers.

Of course the consumer pays. But it must not be forgotten, in considering the cost of shorter hours for workers, that they also are consumers. The 7,000,000 industrial workers of the United States, with their families, constitute a very large element in the total body of consumers.

It is the fashion among those not engaged in industry to ignore this point and to argue for "the consumer," as a mysterious, separate body of people destined to bear all public burdens.

If oil and other Standard products increase in price as the result of the granting of the eight-hour day to the trust's workers, consumers generally will not be eager to lay the blame on those workers who themselves will bear an appreciable part of the cost.

SLEEPING SHEPHERDS?

The Mayor has done the right thing in complying with the wishes of the religious leaders for a resumption of church services in the city jail. We allow a condemned man to choose his spiritual adviser and there is no question as to the kind of influence religion may have upon unfortunate men confronted with death. By all means, let that influence be felt among those not in such peril. It may even prevent some from falling into the depths.

But what were the shepherds of this wandering flock doing for two whole months during which, it appears, the sheep were neglected? Better late than never. It may be they were battering at the gates, but through lack of publicity failed to make themselves heard.

TRUE HEROES.

The use of cosmetics has increased among the women of England since the beginning of the war.

Pathos breathes through this short perfunctory announcement. Heroism masking itself in the guise of frivolity to conceal sorrow! The old mother attempting to smooth the furrows in her face which anguish for her boy in the trenches has plowed. The young mother with baby in her lap, brightening her bleached cheeks, lest it might see the wound within her heart dispair has wrought by thoughts of far-off battle fields on which her husband fights. The maiden drooping like a withered flower, applying artificial means to hold her bloom, in youthful hope her lover may return.

The men in trenches, or on battlefields, are buoyed up by action, nor is there a bullet for each man. But in the desolate home, where woman waits, there is a wound for all.

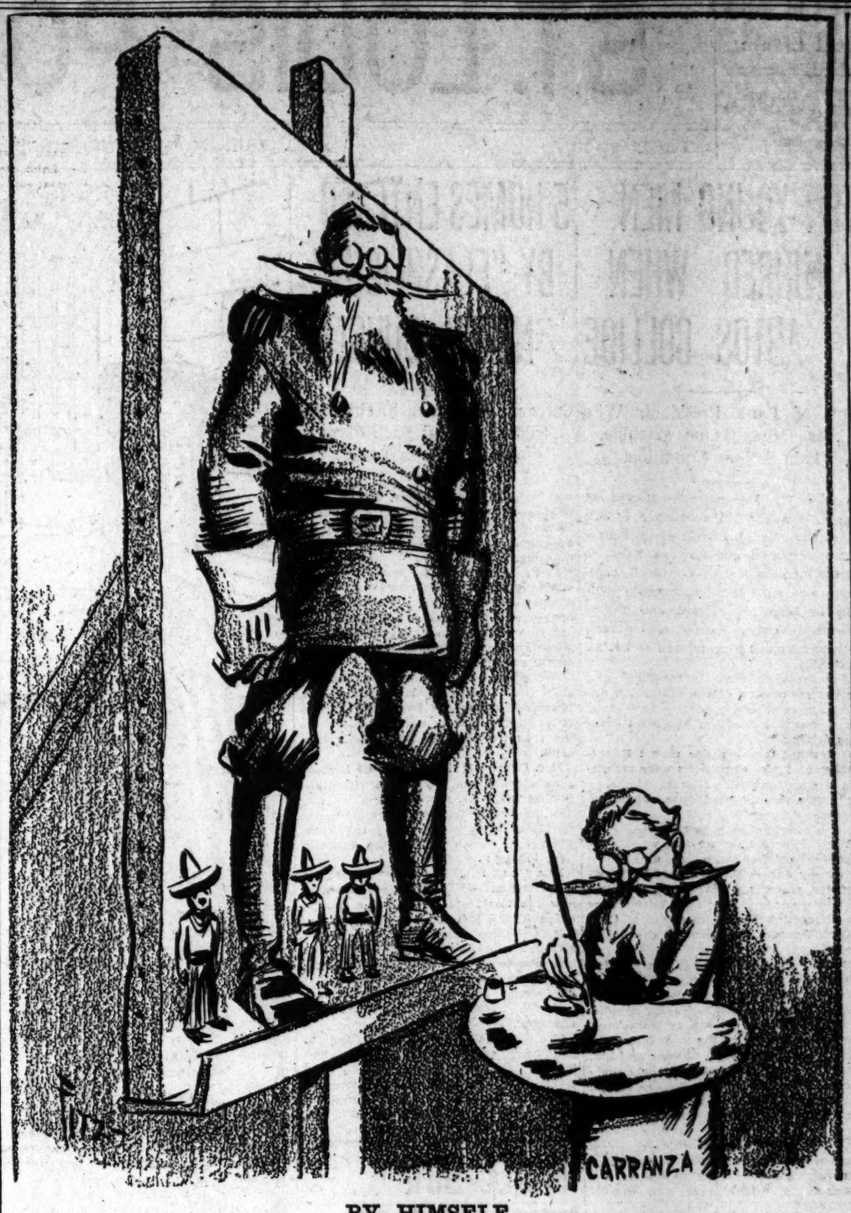

The victor of a deadly charge is lauded by the world, while the woman, heroically concealing her wounds with cosmetics, goes unsung.

Must the world's heroes in order to be recognized be bathed in blood?

"WAR A BLESSING TO GERMANY."

"We never did know what a spendthrift nation we were until this war has opened our eyes," says a correspondent in the Koelnische Volkszeitung. "We had great tracts of land for beauty of the landscape only; acres upon acres to graze a few pet horses. Now all that willing land has been harnessed to do us service. Look at Charlottenburg, for instance, where 1750 full-fledged gardens now take the place of the great lawn; where women and children, young men and old, not privileged to serve their country in the field, work at their leisure all day or some hours of the day each in producing vegetables; thus utilizing every grain of earth to feed hungry mouths. When we look back we wonder at the reckless waste of kindly earth, and at the wealth which we have allowed, for years, to pass unused. How beneficial to the health of our population it is to live in the open! Women and children fill their lungs with pure ozone; even factory hands and clerks snatch an hour or two of health-giving air after their day's confinement.

"These communal gardens," the writer says, "have been instituted over the length and breadth of the land, and "have made Germany independent forever of imports of foodstuffs."

BY HIMSELF.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH by Clark McAdams

MR. ANTWINE ON CARRANZA.

MR. ANTWINE was even more thoughtful than usual when he laid his paper aside.

"It looks as if Gen Carranza has us in this last exchange of courtesies," he said. "He cannot consider any interference in the domestic affairs of Mexico, and politely asks us to mind our own business until he gets things cleaned up. He says there is almost nothing left of Villa and Zapata, and we have reason to know that is true. Carranza has outlasted them all, and there probably isn't anyone who would care to wager that given his chance the General will not turn out to be cock of the walk.

"I'm in favor of letting it go at that, and I hope the President is. Gen. Carranza was not our choice, but we ought to be too glad that the end of the war is in sight to care who is winning. It would be magnanimous of us under the circumstances to give Carranza his chance. He seems to have earned it. It is true that such a course would leave Gen. Villa on our hands, but that is what we get for having taken sides in another country's revolution. You will recall that England did that during our own Civil War, and that we have kept her embarrassment warm ever since. The truth is that Mexico's revolution only seems different to us because we are so much bigger than Mexico. It really is pretty much the same thing. We would have been furious had some other country tried to interfere in our Civil War after it had been running three years. I was for Villa, but if Carranza is the better bet, I want to get in on him. It seems ridiculous to lose where one can make such a leisurely choice."

If the submarine matter isn't adjusted after all, there is no reason why Col. Roosevelt could continue to expose himself to the mosquitoes of Quebec.

Just because this is a Ford story, don't let anybody tell you he has already heard it:

A farmer having torn the old tin roof off his barn was using it to fill up a washout, when a friend came along and told him he could get something for it by shipping it to Henry Ford. Of course, this appealed to the farmer and he rolled up the roofing and shipped it to the Ford factory in Detroit. Several days later he received a letter from the factory saying: "We can not imagine what you ran into, but we will fix it up for fifty dollars."

So much has been said about buying a home that a Kansas City bank clerk stole the money and bought one.

It is thought that there has been more hard fighting at Hartmanns-Weilerkopf than anywhere else on the western battle front. It takes the hyphen to keep things moving.

PICTURE OF AN AMERICAN FAMILY WHICH HAS NO AUTOMOBILE.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

HEALTH HINTS.

MRS. J. C. C.—Eyeglasses fitted by a skilled oculist straighten crossed eyes.

M. I. K.—For constipation, eat bran, olive oil, laxative foods; daily exercise of all muscles, especially abdominal, in fresh air. Drink plenty of water. It is now said that in some cases eyestrain causes constipation and even tuberculosis. Such cases are for oculists and optometrists to treat.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

E. C. S.—Bleaching to a good, clear white: One tablespoonful chloride of lime to one quart water. Let remain in fluid about 10 minutes. Then wash in the ordinary way.

LAW POINTS.

H. C. C.—Serial numbers have been abolished.

A.—A man will not be punished by law for marrying an undivorced woman; she may be imprisoned for bigamy.

BUFFALO.—Parties getting marriage license are not usually punished for lying; but falsehood does not make the marriage less binding, once the knot is tied.

FRANK.—Alien who has had first papers a year may vote in Missouri for President. The right to vote ceases if he does not get his second papers within five years.

G. M. N.—City ordinances prohibit the making of fires in streets, alleys, lots or other public places unless they are contained in a receptacle. Smoke from such fires is not mentioned.

MALARIA AND TYPHOID.

IGNORANCE.—No one can get malaria unless bitten by a malaria mosquito. Hence the necessity for its extermination. In water, especially stagnant water, where this mosquito breeds, it is almost invariably associated with mosquitos that are merely a nuisance, of which the commonest is the house or rain barrel mosquito. Since, so far as the methods of extermination go, the treatment is essentially the same for both, the malarial mosquito and the nuisance mosquitoes, the destruction of one means the annihilation of the others.—Pittsburg Board of Health. Keep behind screens and bars at night. If you contract malaria in spite of this precaution begin taking quinine at once. Take 30 grains a day for two days. Start 12 hours or more before the chill is due. Take quinine in 20 grain daily doses for two days each week for six weeks. Do this even though the chills do not return on the seventh, fourteenth, or twenty-first day.—Dr. Bass. A reader asks for an opinion on the advisability of using the new vaccination against typhoid, which is compulsory in the army. Much of the opposition to new methods of treatment comes from persons who appreciate the importance of avoiding disease by rational living, but do not discriminate between good and bad practice. In the natural course of typhoid an antidote is developed in the blood for the poison given off by the typhoid germ. Only when the system has sufficient vitality to develop this antidote is recovery possible. This process establishes immunity from typhoid, at least for a long time. The typhoid vaccine establishes this immunity by imitating nature's process of cure, and if the vaccine is carefully prepared, preserved and administered the effect is far less injurious and far less expensive than to undergo a siege of typhoid; so that under existing conditions of defective sanitation and ignorance of the masses it is doubtless better to endure the lesser evil with the slight risk that it involves.—Dr. T. J. Allen.

READER.—For all dances, see books in Public Library. Here are the old-time quadrille calls in rhyme:

S'lute your pardner; let 'er go;
Balance all, an' do-si-do;
Swing your girl and run away;
Right an' left on; gents mark 'er;
Gents to right, an' swing or chase;
On to next gal, an' repeat.
Balance next an' don't be shy;
Swing your pard, an' swing 'er high;
Bunch the gals an' circle 'round;
Whack yer feet until they's pound.
All man left, an' balance all;
Lift your hoofs, an' let 'em fall;
Back to pardner, do-si-do;
All join hand, an' off you go!

PRINCETON.—To do three years of college work in one year under a private tutor is practically impossible. Any one tutor who could give you the work in one year that a great number of specialists would give you in three would be a genius who wouldn't have to make his living tutoring in private. The most you could expect to get would be an ill-digested smattering unless you are yourself an extraordinary genius. At 20 you are certainly not too old to spend four years at a good college or university. When you come out at 23 your better preparation would more than make amends for a two or three-year handicap. No successful short cut to a good education has yet been devised.

The man who finds an old cent which has been buried for many years in a crack in an old house straightway becomes convinced that he has unearthed a treasure. He shows it with caution to a few close friends, and then begins to get bids on it from collectors. When the first dealer tells him it is worth no more than its face value he scents a scheme to defraud him. When the second tells him the same thing, he scents a conspiracy. And after he has offered it to a number of dealers, getting the same answer in each case, he decides that the dealers are not competent to judge values, and keeps the coin himself.—Indianapolis News.)

Making Good

By Walter Joseph De Laney.

"I DO not wish you to become alarmed or change your plans," wrote the father of Eleanor Gwynne to his only daughter, 2000 miles away from home. "I tell you of the possible trouble in my business only because you might hear of it through other sources. I may be able to weather through. If not, it means our living on a more moderate scale, that is all. You still have the income from your mother's estate, so we cannot exactly starve."

"Poor, dear papa! and always thinking of my comfort and happiness!" mused Eleanor with some agitation. "Of course I shall not remain here—with him alone with his trouble. No, there is a stage Monday and it will see me homeward bound."

How different this, her second visit from the first she had made to the pine-laden breezes and exquisite solitude of an Arizona health resort! The year previous at exactly this same season of the year she and her father had spent three weeks together at this romantic spot. Only, then everything was prospering, there were no cares of business to annoy. Eleanor folded the letter, when she noticed some additional lines, comprising a postscript, on the reverse side of the sheet.

"By the way," it ran, "it is a forlorn hope, but I mention it—that scamp, Warren Brill! I don't know if you remember him, but he is that likely looking young fellow who acted as our guide for a time. I never told you, but I was so taken with his manliness and energy that I was induced by him to trust him with $5000 to buy a mine. He asked a year in which to develop it and make us both rich. I have never heard from him since, but a few months ago I wrote to some people at Crofutt Pass about him. They could tell me nothing about Brill, but said that the mine he purchased, or pretended to purchase, was abandoned because it was flooded and absolutely worthless. It is a vain quest, I imagine, but you might make some inquiries and let me know the result. That $5000 would pretty nearly mean my business salvation just now."

Eleanor Makes Inquiries.

THERE was a certain animation in the eyes of the pretty girl as she read these lines. These were not needed to at once invoke a remembrance of the person they named. Eleanor retained a vivid memory of the bright, gentlemanly young fellow who had been their companion for nearly a week. He was musical, educated, in harmony with their ideas of courtesy and refinement and had left a distinctly pleasing impression on the mind of Eleanor.

She was astounded at the implication of dishonesty made by her father. She had regarded Brill as the soul of honor. More than once in gay frivolous social circles she had compared her flippant admirers with this model young Westerner, and not to his disadvantage.

That evening Eleanor made inquiries at a tourist hotel as to Brill. He was remembered, but had dropped out of sight months since, she was informed.

"There was a great friend of his named Savage," advised the landlady. "I think he is a clerk or something at the mail station."

There Eleanor went the next morning. It was to locate this Savage, a young man, a cripple, whose eyes brightened and whose face glowed at the mention of a name evidently cherished.

"Mr. Brill is across the range somewhere near Inca," he said, and then he burst forth into extravagant eulogies concerning the man he designated as his best friend. It appeared that Brill had saved his life in a great freshet disaster and had obtained him his present position.

Eleanor Is Robbed.

THE landlady, when Eleanor began to make inquiries regarding the route over the range, seriously advised her not to make the journey alone.

"You should not attempt it, unprotected," she warned Eleanor. "The country is wild and infested with vicious halfbreeds and even outlaws," but Eleanor was fearless and willful. She equipped herself in stanch walking trim, and noontide saw her passing down a lonely mountain gully and recognizing marks in the landscape described to her which indicated that she was nearing Crofutt Pass. Suddenly, turning past a dense thicket, she recoiled with a start as a tawny-skinned woman darted directly in front of her.

The stranger, a halfbreed squaw, was slovenly, half intoxicated and vicious looking. Her eyes glowed as she made out the small netted hand bag suspended from the belt that Eleanor wore. She thrust out her hand, seized it and tore it loose. Eleanor put out a detaining hand, for the bag contained some money and valuable jewelry.

The squaw produced a keen-bladed knife and showed her teeth. Then she quickly uncoiled a short lariat from her waist. Eleanor read her purpose, to bind her hand and foot and leave her helpless while she fled safely with her spoils.

Eleanor sought to defend herself. She stooped suddenly, seized a heavy stick lying in the path, swung it around and swept her despoiler off her feet. With an angry snarl the squaw regained her feet, but Eleanor fled precipitately. She fancid she heard a masculine voice shouting out after her, but she feared an accomplice of the squaw and terror lent fleetness to her actions.

Eleanor deviated from the gully, seeking shelter in rushing up a side path. At the top she paused breathless. A view of the spot where she had been robbed was now shut out from her view. Eleanor made out a cabin, its door open. She rushed through the aperture and sank to a chair in a rudely furnished room, nearly at the point of fainting.

"That Scamp," Warren Brill.

HER eyes opened wide as, wandering about the room, they fell upon a picture on a stand. It was her own. Near to it was a tiny vase and in this, as if replaced fresh every morning, was a mountain daisy, her favorite flower.

She recalled having her picture taken the year before in this very district by a traveling photographer. Was this one printed from the same negative? Lost in anger, half-guessing the truth, she started up as a stalwart form crossed the threshold. It was "that scamp," Warren Brill!

He greeted her with manifest repression and respect. She wondered if Fate was in all this, as he told of witnessing the robbery, of recovering the booty from the squaw.

"I found this on the ground," he explained, and he handed Eleanor with the handbag the letter she had received from her father the day previous. There was a queer twinkle in his eye. She flushed deeply.

"It is just a year, lacking three days, since your father lent me the money to purchase the old mine, Miss Wynne," he said. "It turned out a heartless swindle, but my defeat urged me up to new efforts to make amends to my generous backer. I struck a new rich prospect. See," and he exhibited receipts from the branch mint for over $50,000.

Brill saw her safely back to town. He saw her, too, every day after that during her stay. Then, the last evening but one, he told his love.

"Dear papa," spoke Eleanor, homereturned a week later, after their greetings were over, "you asked me to find 'that scamp,' Warren Brill, for you."

"Yes, Eleanor."

"Well, I have brought him with me to explain all about his terrible duplicity!"

And Eleanor went into the hallway and beckoned to Warren Brill, and led into the presence of her amazed sire her future husband.

Nancy and Jacob

Sandman story of the magic key that is going to open the treasure chest of the gypsies.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

Part I.

NANCY and Jacob were brother and sister. The old grandmother who had brought them up died when they were still a little boy and girl.

Before she died she called the children to her and put around Jacob's neck a cord, on which was hung a key.

"Keep this key," the grandmother told Jacob. "It was given to me by an old gypsy woman, to whom I gave shelter and food one cold night.

"She told me that some day I might find the treasure it unlocked, and that I or my children might be made comfortable for the rest of our lives.

"But I never found the treasure, so I pass the key on to you and Nancy; it may bring fortune to you."

Soon after their grandmother died and Nancy and Jacob were left alone, and without any money or food. The house was all they had, and that only sheltered them from the wind. They needed wood in winter for a fire.

IT was late in the fall and the days were growing cold, when Jacob said one day to his sister: "I am going to hunt for the treasure that this key unlocks; there is a little food left, and I can find work as I go along.

"The treasure is not around here; of that we are sure, for we have looked everywhere."

So, kissing his sister good-by, Jacob started off on his quest, stopping at every place he saw a keyhole and trying his key, but it was either too small or too large, and at last he was driven from one place because he was caught trying to unlock an old trunk that had been thrown by the roadside.

"If I keep trying the key I will be sent to prison for a thief," said Jacob, one day. "I will leave the road and go into the forest; it may be that there is a house there that the key will fit. I have heard that wonderful treasures have been found hidden there.' So into the forest he went, but he saw no house, and when night overtook him he had to sleep on the ground.

He awoke with a start after he had slept a lone time, and, seeing a bright light not far off, he thought after all there must have been a house and he had not found it.

Jacob got up and went toward the place where he saw the light, but when he was near enough to see he drew back, for around a big chest were a dozen or more men, each with a big hammer, and they took turns striking this chest, which looked as if it were made of iron.

But with all their pounding they could not break it open, and at last they threw down their hammers and sat down on the ground beside the chest.

"It is no use. I told you it could not be done," said one of the men. "You know the Queen said when she died that we should never see the inside of the chest until it was opened by a King or Queen of another race."

"Yes," said another, "I have heard my grandmother say the same thing. The band was unkind to the old Queen in some way and she went away, taking with her the key that unlocked the treasure chest, and when she returned she told them as she was dying that it had passed out of our tribe and when it was unlocked it would be by another race who would rule us."

JACOB'S heart stood still for a minute, for he knew that he must be looking at the treasure to which he held the key, but who were all these strang looking men, with their gaily colored coats and queer looking headdresses, and what would they do to him when they found he had the key to their treasure chest?

Pretty soon the men got up, threw their hammers over their shoulders and walked away, and Jacob crept softly after them, for he wanted to see where they lived.

It was not very far, and Jacob soon smelled the cdor of cooking, which made him very hungry, and he forgot the treasure.

It was almost sunrise now and the women were getting breakfast over little fires which were burning under kettles swung on three sticks.

When Jacob saw this and the tents nearby he knew that he had come upon a gypsy camp, and he was a little frightened, but his hunger soon overcame that feeling and he walked boldly up to one of the women who was cooking and asked her for something to eat.

"Well, where did you come from?" she asked Jacob, and then she called to the others to come and see the stranger.

One of the men whom Jacob had seen trying to break open the chest looked at him closer than the others did.

"What have you tied around your neck?" he asked, for he had spied the piece of cord that held the key.

Tomorrow I will tell you what happened to Jacob and how he unlocked the chest.

To Clean Sewing Machine.

Sewing is not half as hard as some people find it if the sewing machine is kept in good order. When the sewing machine works hard and heavily, take the needle and shuttle out and give every joint and bearing a generous bath of gasoline. Of course, there should not be a lighted lamp or fire of any kind in the room. Turn the wheels briskly for a few moments, to enable the gasoline to penetrate every part and to loosen and wash away the old oil and grime. Then clean it all away. When all the oil and grime has been removed, oil with proper lubricating oil, running the machine for two or three minutes before inserting the needle. Now, with a piece or chamois skin, wipe away all superfluous oil. It is a pleasure to sew on a machine treated in this manner.

New York produces more than half of the talc in the United States, with Vermont in the second place.

SCHEDULE FAVORS TERRIERS IN LAST DASH FOR PENNANT

Jones' Team Will Play All Its Remaining Games This Season on Home Grounds.

PARK RECORDS BROKEN

Cut Prices and Near-Pennant Team Attract 18,000 Estimated Crowd Sunday.

What was easily the largest crowd that has witnessed a Federal League game in St. Louis since the club made its first appearance at Grand and Laclede, in April, 1914, passed through the turnstiles yesterday and saw Jones' men lose a heart-breaking 1—0 game in the first half of the twin bill and tie in the second, 2—2. It was estimated that 18,000 people were present.

President Lloyd Rickart of the local team, when asked the attendance yesterday, said: "I think the official figures will run right up to the 18,000 mark."

All the stands were packed to overflow. In right field the pavilion fans were scattered two deep all along the fence almost to the score board. The estimates for the different stands are as follows: Bleachers 5500, pavilion 4500 and grand stand 8000. If all this was cash the receipts for the day would have been $5675.

The highest estimated attendance at Robison Field yesterday was 5500.

Jones' clan missed a great chance to move up on the leaders yesterday. Had the Terriers been able to win the two games, and they had many chances, they would this morning be only one point behind Pittsburg. As it is, though, the margin between the pair is 1½ contests.

Schedule Favors Terriers.

The Terriers play all their remaining games in the dash for the pennant on the local grounds. The team still has 21 games to play—two with Newark, five with Baltimore, Brooklyn and Buffalo, and four with Kansas City. The final clash with an Eastern club, that with Buffalo, may decide the chances of the Terriers.

Since Harry Lord took hold of the Buffs they have been playing great ball and have traveled at a faster pace from July 1 than any other club in the league. Although Jones' clan holds a long edge over Brooklyn, this is another team to be feared. With John Ganzel at the helm, the Brookfeds have been playing great ball, and last Saturday handed the Pittsfeds a double defeat.

St. Louis, though, will have no advantage over Pittsburg, as Oakes' men play all their remaining games with the exception of the two in Brooklyn today and the closing one of the season, at home. The Rebels have 22 games to play—two with Brooklyn and five each with Buffalo, Newark, Baltimore and Chicago.

What Terriers Must Do.

If Pittsburg plays at its present pace for the remainder of the season the Terriers will have to win two-thirds of their games to land the pennant. Should Pittsburg continue at a .553 mark, the final figure for Oakes' men will be 85—69. If the Terriers hope to beat this they will have to do 86—69, which means they must win 14 and lose only 7. They have a good chance of doing it, though.

That first game yesterday was a heart-breaker for Crandall to lose. The only run off him in the first was unearned. Campbell singled for a starter. Reed, trying to sacrifice, tapped to Borton, who threw to Johnson in plenty of time to get Campbell, but Johnson dropped the ball. Rousch "sacked" the pair along. Then Chapman picked Reed off second. It looked as though Crandall would get out of the hole, but Laporte beat out a roller to Johnson, and Campbell scored, with the only run of the game.

Terriers Overlook Chances.

Jones' men had no less than six chances to score. In the first Tobin was sent home on a short single to left and was an easy out. Another failure to tie the count came in the second. The same happened in the fifth and sixth. In each, the first man got on base. In the eighth Babe Borton fell down with the bases full, while in the ninth Johnny Tobin missed a chance to win when he came up with men on second and third. Campbell injured his ankle in the eighth and the Newfed star will be out for a week.

Dave Davenport's string of shutout innings, which totaled 30, were shattered in the second round of the closing game, when Laporte's single and steal and Mills' hit sent the ex-Brownie over. A "fluke" home run by Rousch saved the Newfeds from defeat in the fourth. The Terriers scored in the fifth and seventh.

Today's game with Newark will be started at 3:15 o'clock, as will all the other clashes here this year. Watson and Moran will probably do the hurling.

Derrill Pratt Will Join Pikers' Coaching Squad; C.B.C. Vets Will Return

Local Football Training Season Will Actively Begin This Week When C. B. C. and Washington Get Down to Work Here, While St. Louis U. Goes Into Camp.

DERRILL PRATT, at present second baseman of the St. Louis Browns, also erstwhile football player, will break into the ranks of gridiron teachers this fall, according to William Edmunds, director of athletics at Washington University. Edmunds stated Saturday that as soon as the American League baseball schedule comes to a close, Pratt will hit a bee-line for St. Louis, don the moleskins, and help coach the Pikeway outfit.

Pratt formerly was a crack half-back on the Alabama University eleven and one year was selected for the All-Southern team. After leaving school he acted as coach at several minor institutions in Dixie. Pratt has told Edmunds that he prefers the fall sport to baseball and would drop the diamond for the gridiron were it not for the difference in compensation that the two games draw.

He has made preparations to live in St. Louis this winter and as he intends to spend the off-season leisurely, the coaching job will not interfere. Edmunds claims that Pratt has had several offers to coach this year, but the fact that the end of the baseball and the early part of the football season conflict, kept him from accepting.

Until Pratt arrives on the scene, Edmunds and Lynn Milford, 1914 Piker quarterback, will have charge of the myrtle and maroon huskies. Practice will be started this Wednesday at Francis Field. Several of the candidates have been working out for the past week and are now in fairly good shape. Edmunds says that he will not waste much time with the fundamentals this season as the spring practice served for that purpose. He expects about sixty candidates to report.

Fine Squad at C. B. C.

Work at Christian Brothers' College will also be inaugurated this week, that is, as soon as the hot weather abates. It was at first thought that the Brothers would no put a strong team in the field. However, judging from the squad of gridders, who will report it seems that quite a formidable eleven should put in the field

Among last year's stars who will return are Walter and Charles Essman, Gallagher, Quinn, Paul Murphy, Willett Hart, Churchill and McCarthy.

Larry Lynn is in school at present, but owing to parental objection it is doubtful if he will play. Then Dan Murphy and Touhey, two youngsters who attracted quite a bit of attention while on the high school team last year also show promise. A squad of 30 to 35 will turn out for the team.

Faculty Coach, Assisted by Players, Will Be in Charge at King's Highway

ONE of the faculty, who has had experience at coaching, will have charge of the squad. With the assistance of the Essman's and other veterans, it is not thought that the team will lack tutoring.

Requests for games have been sent to schools throughout the West. It was stated that several answers had been received, but the authorities did not wish to divulge the names of the schools until the games had been clinched.

Coach George Keogan and 24 candidates for the St. Louis University football team will depart for St. Clair, Mo., Wednesday afternoon, where they will remain two weeks, training for the coming season. In the party will be 12 players who received their letter for yeoman service on the 1914 team. They are Capt. Stanislav, Muenzer, Jones, Snoble, Paskell, Thomas, Scale, Donnelly, Ellsworth, Welsh, Gleason and McGuire. Twelve members of last year's freshman outfit will also be in the party.

When the squad returns a number of brand new recruits will join it and before the season opens at least 35 Billikens should be in uniform.

Prep Schools Start Work.

Local high schools and private school squads will also get to work for the first time this week. There will be quite a change in the "prep" gridiron situation this fall. Besides Soldan, Central, Yeatman and McKinley, another school will make its appearance in the high school circle. Grover Cleveland High will have a team composed of a number of 1914 Central and McKinley players. Then another potent factor in the scholastic struggle for supremacy this year will be Manual-Smith. Manual Training School and Smith Academy have been combined and out of the combined forces of the two schools a formidable eleven should be assembled.

It is also whispered about that Western Military Academy will make its reappearance in this city after an absence of several years. Principia Academy, St. Louis University Undergraduate Department, David Ranken Trades School, and the various county schools will be represented as usual.

Rickey Excels Mack in Snaring Young Twirlers

Koob, Parks, McCabe and Sisler Better Than Any Rookies Connie Has Shown.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—Branch Rickey and Connie Mack are trying to build up pitching staffs, respectively, for the Browns and Athletics, and on what has been shown to date the young St. Louis manager has accomplished more than his more illustrious rival. Of the many pitchers turned over to him when he assumed the management of the Browns, Rickey has disposed of all save Carl Weilman and Earl Hamilton. He is responsible for all the others on the club who come under the heading of pitchers. Foremost among the newcomers are Ernie Koob and George Sisler, as the latter must be placed in the all-events class.

Chester Hoff of Rochester, Jim Parks of Lexington and Tim McCabe of Decatur have all pitched and won games. They will bear watching. Others now with the club who will soon be given opportunities are: John Tillman of New Bedford, Thomas Phillips of Wilkes-Barre, Allen Southern of Wichita and Clarence Sims of Charleston, W. Va.

Connie Mack has tried out a squad equally as large, if not larger than Rickey's force in an effort to find men to take the places of Chief Bender, Eddie Plank and Jack Coombs. Mack's pitching staff is in a frightful condition, and of all the youngsters he has tested, only Tom Sheehan, the long right-hander, obtained from the Peoria (Three-I. League) team has delivered to date.

Mack is trying a somewhat different scheme from that of Rickey. He has had Ira Thomas and Harry Davis scouring the big and small towns, watching mostly semi-pro teams play. Most of the new young pitchers are sandlotters.

Aside from Sisler and Koob, the other Brownie hurlers were purchased.

The Browns and Athletics will renew their struggle here today. The Browns will attempt to win their sixth successive game and Phillips of Wilkes-Barre will probably get the pitching assignment.

The Combat.

WHAT NEWS, what news, thou pilgrim gray,
What news about the fight?
Did Gibbons win tl bloody fray
With his potential right?
Or did the nimble Packey Mack
Tear into Mr. Gibbons
And stretch him prone upon his back,
All cut up into ribbons?

"How many quarts of gore were spilled
Upon the battlefield?
Was either Mike or Packey killed:
Did either fighter yield?
Were noses battered out of shape,
Were many teeth knocked out?
Or did they manage to escape
Uninjured from the bout?

"It was a scrap, believe me, son,
Worth going miles to see;
Though neither Mike or Packey won"
So said the referee.
They both went at it nip and tuck
To win the championship;
And then, by way of changing luck,
They tried it tuck and nip.

"McFarland made a mighty rush
And balling up his fist
He swung his right and landed flush
On Mr. Gibbons' wrist.
But Gibbons, not a whit dismayed,
Was full of "pep" and vim;
And, walking up to Packey, made
An awful face at him.

"The honors thus were even and
They fell into a clinch,
When Gibbons grabbed McFarland's hand
And gave it quite a pinch;
McFarland rallied from the blow
And, with a vengeful shout,
He stepped on Mr. Gibbons' toe
And nearly put him out.

"Yes, take it all in all, my son,
It was a noble scrap.
Though neither Mike or Packey won
The public stood a tap;
While both the principals emerged
Without their luster dimmed;
The fight fans as they homeward surged
Suspected they'd been trimmed."

* * *

On the Contrary.

THERE appears to be no falling off in the sucker birth rate.

* * *

But, as Packey justly remarks, when they come at you with a bundle of kale and force it on you, why sidestep?

* * *

Furthermore, if the Dear Old Public insists on being trimmed, there is no reason why it should not be trimmed.

* * *

A little trimming now and then is relished by the best of men. So sayeth the barber.

* * *

In the meantime, those who have been using the old gold brick to prop the door open can find a ready market for it at Brighton Beach.

* * *

Speaking about gold bricks and other mineralological phenomena, see where the Browns have won five straight.

* * *

By pulling a twin killing on Saturday the Brownies gained half a game on the Red Sox and are now 33½ games out of first place.

* * *

Nobody Home.

OPPORTUNITY came a knocking at the Terriers' door yesterday afternoon, but found the folks were all out.

* * *

Looks like Jones had better put Armando Marsans back in his injunction suit. He doesn't seem to prosper in a regular baseball "uni."

* * *

The chances look bright for the Giants and Elephants pulling off that subterranean serious. It all depends on whether the Mackmen finish inside the percentage table or not.

* * *

Wilbert Robinson, the superdreadnaught of the Trolley Dodgers, has the greatest displacement of any manager in the parent body, but he is going to have a tough time displacing Pat Moran in the league leadership.

Fisher to Coach Sewanee.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 13.—Ray Fisher, New York Yankee pitcher, has been retained by the University of the South Sewanee as general athletic trained. Fisher, who succeeded Bill Gardner, former Carlisle Indian star, will report at Sewanee Oct. 1. He served in a similar capacity last year at the University of Vermont.

NEW BANTAMS TO BATTLE, TUESDAY, AT FUTURE CITY

Murray and Pappas, About Whom Little Is Locally Known, Will Appear in Feature.

Jimmie Pappas of Corinth, Greece, and Joplin, Mo., a bantamweight fighter, slipped into St. Louis Saturday afternoon in advance of his coming tangle with Jimmy Murray of Brooklyn, another bit of raw material that Sport Sullivan is sending West for Brother Tom to develop.

The boys are scheduled to box at the Future City A. C. Tuesday night. Not much is positively known of either, locally, and the guide books are entirely barren of reference to these future greats

Pappas is a sturdy looking little chap, big enough in his street clothes to be a featherweight. He declares, however, he will not weigh more than 114 pounds in the ring. He is letting Murray do 118, an absence of the pound-of-flesh habit so common to champions, which makes one think he can't be much. Whoever heard of a champion giving an opponent six ounces advantage?

Pappas is a native Greek and says he has been in this country only eight of his 20 years. Three of the eight he spent in Joplin, Mo., where he illuminated shoes by day and shone in the ring by night. Jimmy Bronson, who brought out Jeff Clarke, Joe Cox and other disappearing big guns of the fight world, gave Pappas his start.

A Few of Pappas' Fights.

Pappas has in the last few months been boxing in Nashville. Some of the men he says he has met are:

Kid Lewis, won, knockout, 4 rounds.

Johnny Bosco, navy bantam champion, decision.

Young Pal Moore, won decision, Memphis.

Kid Herman, lost decision, Nashville.

Nate Jackson, knockout, Henrietta, Ok.

Young Abe Attell, knockout, 4 rounds, Henrietta, Ok.

Red Dolan, won decision, 6 rounds, Nashville.

Leslie Winters, won twice, Nashville.

Pappas claims he has been fighting featherweights as often as bantamweights and doesn't care much how big they come.

Murray has been more than ordinarily successful in his Eastern engagements, having boxed Bantamweight Champion "Kid" Williams 15 rounds in Baltimore and six rounds in Philadelphia. The latter bout was boxed first and resulted in their Baltimore engagement. In addition to this, Murray has shown well in bouts with "Dutch" Brandt, Johnny Solberg, "Battling" Lahn, "Young" Limbo and "Battling" Reddy, and this speaks very well for him.

Murray is an Italian, and his real name cannot be obtained until he makes his appearance here.

Irrespective of what the main event may turn out to be, it is certain that the semi-final will furnish a good bout, in which Cleve Atwell of Memphis, Tenn., and Leo Witt of St. Louis will appear. These two are very evenly matched Atwell made his first appearance here on Aug. 3, when he won from "Dummy" Jordan, displaying remarkable cleverness and speed. One week later he met Leo Witt and was outpointed. It developed afterwards that Atwell had taken the bout on short notice and was not in his best condition. A short while afterwards they met in private and boxed an exceptionally fast draw. They have agreed on 135 pounds for next Tuesday night, and this weight should suit both.

In one of the preliminaries Jack Rainey is matched with "One-Round" Wagner, while in the other "Young" Tom Sharkey will meet Willie Holderbaek.

3 Teams Remain in Running for Municipal Title

Three teams—the Wolffs of the Mercantile League, the Keen Kutters of the Independent League and the St. Louis Brass team of the Industrial League, remaining in the race for the municipal baseball championship. Next Saturday the Wolffs play the St. Louis Brass, while the winner will tackle the Keen Kutters for the title next Sunday.

The Wolffs defeated the Conroys, 4—2, yesterday. All the counts for the winners were unearned. The Keen Kutters eliminated the Southern A. C. in a weird game, 15—11. The St. Louis Brass trounced the Sam Schultzs' 1—3.

The Sam Schultz got into yesterday's battling because the officials threw out the Sylvan victory over them on Saturday. The Schultzs' claim that the Sylvans used a "ringer," was upheld and the game ordered played over. The City League pennant winners won, 1—2 in five frames.

For Better Dry Cleaning "Phone Chapman," Sidney 3110.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Aha! Dope Scores at Last!

OLD MAN DOPE was still suffering from a nervous shock experienced late Saturday night when they told him that the McFarland-Gibbons fight had actually run true to form. Dope, as you may recall, did not bother with naming the winner, but he picked THE PUBLIC to get a trimming, which it duly received.

Mike and Packey, it seems, struggled so desperately to earn that $32,500 that they almost raised a perspiration.

It appears that among the 30,000 or so persons present there were a few short sports so peeved that they complained loudly, saying the contest was a fake.

But a still larger number held that they didn't see any "fake" about the contest—or anything else, either, for the reason that telescopes were not served. N. B.—In this connection it may be mentioned that some of the seats were 276 feet distant from the ring.

* * *

Not "Fake," Just Safety First.

IT is not to be believed that a man of Packey's means and standing would fake. Old Man Dope gives the Chicago man credit for being honest.

As suggested before in this column, the nature of the show made it certain that nothing but a "safety first" boxing match could result from the meeting of this pair.

When two extremely good boxers meet in the ring for 10 rounds, for no decision and with no possibility of a championship resulting from any phase of the result, look for a wretched contest.

The men were in there to get the money with as little loss to their reputations and personal beauty as possible.

* * *

The McFarland bout made a "boob" out of the New York Boxing Commission, which recently established a rule cutting out "backhand" blows. McFarland violated this rule throughout the contest and got away with it.

* * *

It's Coming to the Feds.

ONE year and two months after Ban B. Johnson, former Czar of the baseball world, declared that the Federal League would cease to exist, a St. Louis baseball club drew 18,000 persons to its park while a rival Organized Baseball team, operating in the same city, the same day, attracted but 3500 persons.

Considering the fact that the said Federal League club competed for two seasons against two rival clubs in the same city, and with a tail-end team the first season, the fact that it is in existence at all is a credit to the gameness of the men behind it.

That it is not only alive and kicking, but has successfully outdrawn its rivals and is now making a bid for the pennant, is another little tribute to the good management of the outlaws.

McFarland-Gibbons Bout a Success Financially, but a Fizzle, Fistically

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.

BOXING fans who paid to see the McFarland-Gibbons fight Saturday are taking their medicine gamely, although grumbling at what was handed them. This is described as being between a fake and a fizzle.

Whatever doubt attaches to the pugilistic end of the show is absent from the financial side, as the contest drew $58,060, according to the estimates of the promoters, who give out the following details:

Paid admissions, 26,092.
Gross receipts, $58,060.
State's 5 per cent share, $2903.45.
Five-dollar seats, 4437, $22,175.
Three-dollar seats, 5450, $16,350.
Two-dollar seats, 4576, $9152.
One-dollar seats, 10,382, $10,382.
Press tickets, 1247.

The men received $32,500. Publicity, advertising, rental and other features brought the total expense up to $43,000, making a net profit for the promoters of $15,000.

Feds Have the Whip Hand.

IN fact, on its face, it appears that Organized Baseball has been outgamed, outfought and all but whipped. And this goes for other cities around the circuit than St. Louis.

Consequently any compromises made this winter between the warring factions—and there will surely be compromises—will have to be at the dictation of the Federals.

* * *

That Ten-Cent Thing.

NOBODY knows better than the Federals that 10-cent baseball can not thrive, unless the number of seats at this figure is materially cut down.

At Federal Park the present proportion of 10-cent seats is about 33 1-3 per cent of the total. So far as can be observed from the almost daily overflows from the pavilion, this is the popular feature at Fed Park. Most of these 10-centers would be willing to pay 25 cents if they could get sun protection.

Hence it appears that the future Federal League park will contain about 10 per cent of 10-cent seats, about 40 per cent of the 25-cent covered seats and a 50 per cent grand stand at 50 cents a seat.

The situation is a big gain for the public in any case; but the double-jitney baseball feature can not last.

Chicago Fans Petition Mayor to Arrange a 3-Cornered Series

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Petitions urging Mayor Thompson to use his influence to make the annual series for the Chicago baseball championship a three-cornered affair with the Chicago Americans, Nationals and Federal League clubs participating, were circulated today. There personally was no chance, it was said, of recognition being extended the Federal leaguers.

Brooklyn beat the Cards yesterday, 4-2. Red Ames wasn't lucky and lost, while the Cards were impotent in the pinch. Only 4000 fans were present and many took turns "riding" the Cards. Some unkind things were said to Huggins, who is seasoned enough, however, to ignore the taunts of two-bit patrons.

Comeback Jones Beats Hoerr in City Title Final

There was a great deal more truth than poetry in the words of the late Mr. Cervantes, who soliloquized that "one man's head is greater than 10 men's hands."

If you don't believe that, just ask Mr. Hoerr, Roland M. Hoerr, the now fallen idol of local tennis circles.

Rollie Hoerr yesterday handed the honor over to that wise old owl, C. Drummond Jones, who two years ago had the same fall that Rollie suffered yesterday. The scores of the five-set match which was played on the Triple A courts in Forest Park before what is estimated to be the largest crowd that has seen a local tennis contest here in years, were 4—6, 6—0, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3.

McLoughlin Unable to Play Here; Other Coast Tennis Stars to Come

MAURICE McLOUGHLIN, the ranking tennis star of America, in a telegram to Roland Hoerr, received today, states that it will be almost impossible for him to accept the invitation of the Triple A Club for an exhibition series here. He expressed the belief, however, that Johnson and Griffin, other stars from the Pacific Coast, will be able to make the trip. Johnson and Griffin play this week in Cincinnati.

President Robert Wilson of the Triple A hasn't given up hope of securing McLoughlin and will burn up the wires today in hope of getting a favorable reply.

SERIES AT BOSTON THIS WEEK SHOULD DECIDE A. L. RACE

Clash Between Leaders Appears to Be Tigers' Last Chance to Assume Lead.

By W. J. O'Connor.

Detroit goes to Boston this week, opening on Thursday a four-game series that may determine the American League winner. The Tigers still are very much in the fight, although there was nobody home last week when Opportunity knocked at the "Jungaleers'" door. However, Jennings still is a factor, and the four-game series which terminates a week hence will probably settle all arguments.

There's no such crucial series impending in the National. The Phils resume today against Pittsburg, and it's Alexander's turn to hurl. He'll probably draw Al Mamaux, the sterling Pirate right-hander. A defeat for Alex will prolong the National League struggle, because of its probable effect on the morale of Moran's men, but a victory for Alexander will just about close the books. The race then will be over, because:

Philadelphia has 24 more games to play and of that number Alexander surely will start and finish six, while he will do relief duty in at least four others, if needed.

And if Philadelphia can win 14 of these 24, a percentage of .583, it will devolve on the other pretenders, Boston and Brooklyn, to accomplish almost impossible feats, towit:

Boston must win 18 and lose 4 of its remaining games, a percentage of .818, to tie, if Philadelphia bags 14 out of 24.

Brooklyn will have to win 16 and lose only 4, a pace of .800, to make it a three-cornered draw.

No Steam Rollers This Year.

The task is too great. Neither Brooklyn nor Boston has the pitchers to steam-roll the Western clubs. If Boston wins 14 and loses eight of its remaining games, it will be traveling faster than it has been for a month. In that case Philadelphia can afford to lose 14 and win only 10. It's a cinch. Pay off on the Phils.

The Phils indicate their class when they braced after losing Catcher Killefer and bagged five straight games. Killefer was hurt in the final Brooklyn game. The Phils lost three straight to the Dodgers and this jolt, coupled with Killefer's injury, was thought to be a staggering blow.

Then Moran's men put their backs to the wall and won five straight. That indicates their class. They're not a great team, but by all odds the steadiest, most consistent entry in the National League. And consistency wins.

Lucky Bobby Byrne.

One of the happiest players in Moran's troupe will be Bobby Byrne of Kerry Patch. Byrne, at present a cripple, will be eligible for the world's series, his second blue ribbon experience. The last time he broke into the baseball classic was in 1909 as a member of the Pirates. His team played Detroit, then a bum baseball town. Bobby's share of the melon as a member of the winning team was $1800. This year he should receive almost twice that much, even though the Phils run second in the "Big Serious." And Bobby will be married immediately after the clash with the A. L. champs. Come on, you Phils!

The Cards are backing away from the first division with measured steps. They still hold fourth place, but Cincinnati is only one full game behind. The Reds won six out of seven games last week, setting the pace for the league. Herzog, by the way, has ordered his men out for morning practice every day until the season closes. He has his optics blued on first division and he'll just about pinch off the fourth-place berth.

RUSSIAN REFUGEES BY MILLIONS CHOKE ALL ROADS INLAND

Berlin Hears That Czar's Order to Evacuate Threatened Territory Caused Chaos.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

BERLIN, via Sayville, L. I., Sept. 13.—Indescribable chaos portends in Russia, where, if even a small part of the reports published in Germany are true, a veritable wave of refugees, estimated at several million women and children and aged and infirm men, is rolling slowly inland before the advancing German and Au..ian armies. The Russian Government, it is alleged here, has ordered that the greater part of the population evacuate the districts threatened by the Austro-Germans. This horde of unfortunates, together with hundreds of thousands similarly forced to leave their homes in the cities and districts occupied by the Germans and Austrians during the last few weeks, has grown to enormous proportions, deluged the Russian cities and towns further inland.

This migration, it is declared, is without plan, direction or control, other than the brutally brief order, "Get out; move eastward."

It is conservatively estimated that these migratory masses number between 2,000,000 and 5,000,000, but the Russkoje Slova of Aug. 22 stated that the state and municipal union of Russian cities fixed the number of refugees at 12,000,000. The majority have not deserted their homes out of any fear of the Germans, but have been compelled to leave by the Government, taking only immediate necessities and, many of them, leaving their homes and fields to be burned to a waste so as not to benefit the enemy.

Ten to 15 trains crowded with refugees arrive daily at Smolensk on the Dnieper, 250 miles southwest of Moscow. Those who have no official certification of their destination are pushed further on, even into Siberia.

Long columns of men, women and children fill the roads, it is said, undergoing indescribable sufferings as they trudge wearily, carrying a scant part of their household goods. One hundred thousand of these refugees have reached Nizhni-Novgorod on the Volga, 265 miles northeast of Moscow. Fifty thousand have made their weary way to Kostroma, 200 miles northeast of Moscow.

WOMAN IN HOSPITAL, CRITICALLY ILL, CAUSES ARREST OF DOCTOR

Henry L. Fichtenkam Is Held Upon Story Told by Mrs. Carrie Butts.

Dr. Henry L. Fichtenkam, 67 years old, of 1939 Lynch street, was arrested yesterday evening after Mrs. Carrie Butts, 31 years old, of 616 Lami street, who was taken to the Lutheran Hospital with puerpural fever brought on by an operation, told the police he had attended her with surgical instruments.

Mrs. Butts is the wife of Clarence Butts, a carpenter. She was taken to the hospital on advice of Dr. E. A. Scott of 1803 Victor street. He told the police he found her in a critical condition when he visited her yesterday.

Dr. Fichtenkam was taken to the hospital and when Mrs. Butts, in his presence, told the police that he had operated on her. He was taken to the Wyoming Street Station, where he was held until he furnished a common-law bond. He said the instrument referred to by Mrs. Butts was used by him only as an aid in examination and not for operating purposes.

BODY OF NEGRO FOUND NEAR CLARKSVILLE UNIDENTIFIED

Was Thought at First to Have Been That of Man Seized by Mob.

CLARKSVILLE, Mo., Sept. 13.—The body of an unidentified negro was found in the Mississippi River near Clarksville yesterday afternoon by Ben Eckert, a fisherman. At first it was supposed to be the body of Love Rudd, who was seized by a mob Friday night while being brought to jail here for theft and who has not been heard of since, but this could not be established. Many negroes, including two brothers of Rudd, saw the body this morning but were unable to identify it.

Early reports were that the feet were tied and the hands secured by handcuffs, but this was denied at an inquest held by Coroner Hendricks this morning. Negroes seemed much excited over the discovery last night, but there was no trouble and white people here paid no more attention to the matter than is usual when unidentified bodies are taken from the river.

Rudd was arrested for a theft after he had been repeatedly in trouble for similar offenses. It was first said the mob had whipped him and ordered him to leave the county.

FUNERAL OF SERGT. LAWTON

Policeman, Who Died as Result of Frostbite, on Force 30 Years.

The funeral of Police Sergeant John Lawton of 2121 University street, will be held at the family residence at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow. Lawton, who was 54 years old, died yesterday from gangrene poisoning, resulting from frostbitten feet, frozen at a fire at Broadway and Cass avenue three years ago. He felt no ill effects until a year later. During the last two years he suffered greatly.

He had been on the force nearly 30 years. He leaves a wife and two children.

Woman in Auto Killed.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 13.—Mrs. E. H. Cope was killed and her husband, E. H. Cope, fatally injured yesterday when their automobile turned over five miles east of Bloomington. Two other occupants of the automobile escaped with slight injuries. All four persons resided in Peoria.

FATHER COMPELS SON, 12, TO FIGHT ANOTHER BOY

Marshal Willmann of University City Says His Boy Whipped Lad Who "Bullied" Him.

Marshal John Willmann of University City was telling his friends today how he had compelled his 12-year-old son, Arnold, to fight another boy to prove he was not a coward and how his son had won the scrap.

Willmann said his son, for nearly six months, had complained that Richard Whiteside, a son of the proprietor of the Cadillac Hotel, formerly the Park Hotel, had "bullied" him. Willmann said his son admitted being afraid of the Whiteside boy.

At noon Saturday, he said, his son came home crying, and complained that the Whiteside boy had called him a coward. The Marshal took his son to the hotel, called out the Whiteside boy, and told his son to "punch him in the nose." The son did not respond promptly, Willmann said, so he shoved him against the other boy.

Willmann said the boys fought for nearly 10 minutes, and that his son succeeded in getting the other boy down and holding him long enough to hit him in the nose so hard that it bled.

Willmann then took his son home. He said he was willing to be prosecuted for his part in the affair, if Whiteside wished to make a charge against him.

The Whiteside boy's parents were not at the hotel when a reporter called.

CHINESE KILLS 3 COUNTRYMEN, TRAVELS 32 MILES TO GET TWO

Laundryman Also Tries to Shoot Policeman at Springfield, Mass., but His Revolver Misses Fire.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 13.—Baw Young, alias Ng Hok, killed three of his countrymen Sunday, traveling 32 miles from Greenfield, Mass., to this city to find two of them. He tried to kill a policeman, but his revolver missed fire.

Young, who wears American clothes and speaks fairly good English, told the police, they assert, that he threw Ong Ben, his partner, on a couch in their laundry at Greenfield early Sunday, and stabbed him to death, and took a train for this city. He walked into the Pekin restaurant, 10 Hampden street, waited for Wu Shee Chung, the proprietor, to appear, and shot him dead. Young walked unmolested to the Canton restaurant, a block away from the Pekin. Nu Hong, the proprietor's son, sat at the cashier's desk near the entrance. Young aproached him and fired three bullets into him. Hong died in a few minutes.

As Young left the Canton a patrolman confronted him. He pushed his revolver in the policeman's face, but it missed fire, and then Kennedy battered him down. Young said the three he had killed had threatened to "get him."

IGOE TAKES MAIL CARRIER'S SIDE IN SELPH CONTROVERSY

Congressman writes Letter to Postmaster-General Burleson—Refuses to Give Out Copy.

Congressman William L. Igoe told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he had written a letter to Postmaster-General Burleson in the interest of a mail carrier who had become involved in a controversy with Postmaster Selph. Igoe declined to give out a copy of his letter for publication or to discuss the controversy between the Postmaster and the mail carrier.

The carrier is said to have been a member of the postoffice clerks' organization, which Postmaster Selph disapproves. Selph recently filed charges against several postoffice clerks for promoting resolutions criticising the administration of the postoffice department and for causing the publication in a newspaper of statements in the Postoffice Bulletin, intended only for circulation among postoffice employes. The employes were removed by the Postoffice Department, after an investigation of the charges.

ZINC ORE SMELTING TRUST INQUIRY BEGINS IN JOPLIN

Nine Operators Testify Regarding Prices Paid in Southwest District of Missouri.

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 13.—Mine operators of Southwest Missouri, at an investigation here today, to determine whether a smelter trust exists in Missouri, testified regarding prices paid in this district for zinc ore. The hearing, presided over by Frank W. McAllister, special commissioner appointed by the State Supreme Court, is being conducted by W. T. Rutherford, assistant Attorney-General of the State.

Mine operators recently made representations that zinc ore prices were not in keeping with the record rise in spelter quotations and a brief inquiry was held here upon the order of John T. Barker, Attorney-General.

Allegations put forth at the inquiry to the effect that a combination of smelter concerns fixed prices caused the Attorney-General to order a full investigation.

IOWA BANK ROBBER KILLED

One of Sioux City Bandits Shot in Supposed Quarrel Over Spoils.

SIOUX CITY, Io., Sept. 13.—One of the three men who held up Ralph M. Tritz, assistant cashier of the Farmers and Merchants' Bank, Saturday afternoon, was killed last night in a pistol fight, which is supposed to have followed a quarrel among the robbers over the division of the spoils. The murdered man was identified by Tritz as one of the men who took $275 from the bank.

J. M. Murphy, at whose home the murder occurred, declared that he was just entering the house when he heard shots, saw the murdered man fall and two other men leave the place.

SPECULATORS PUT STOCKS HIGHER ON IMPROVED OUTLOOK

Sterling Exchange Advances to 5c Above Low of Last Week—European Gold Inflow.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The general recovery which occurred on the Stock Exchange today was again ascribed, not to purchases by the outside public, but to the operations of professional speculators. But the buying which appeared from that source undoubtedly reflected an increasingly hopeful view of the two uncertain questions, the status of the dispute with Germany and the prospects for a loan, through which the problems of foreign exchange may for the time be solved.

"Nothing of an official character developed in regard to the controversy with Berlin. A remarkably general consensus of opinion prevailed, however, to the effect that, the whole situation being what it is, the German Government has no recourse left but once more to cease quibbling and make in plain English the guarantees which it professed to make two weeks ago.

Sterling Exchange Recovering.

"Sterling exchange, which closed late Saturday afternoon around $4.65, moved somewhat irregularly, but got up to $4.67½ bu midday—a rate still 4c below the figure to which it rose a week ago Friday, on the violent upward reaction from the $4.50 rate of two days before, but 5c above last week's lowest. The recovery plainly enough reflected some increase of confidence in the pending plans to stabilize the market, but sentiment on that point is still and naturally cautious. It would throw a good deal of interesting sidelight on the sterling market of the fortnight past if one could get a complete list of the remittances from outside markets, heretofore sent on to London to establish or add to a commercial balance, which were stopped by the remittance and left on deposit in New York when exchange on London was collapsing.

"It could not be said that discussion of the terms and prospects of the proposed loan of $500,000,000 or more to the London market was at all advanced. The discussion is still, indeed, in a shape which hardly warrants confident prediction concerning any phase of the arrangements. To Wall street, and perhaps to the sterling market also, the important fact is that negotiations have at last begun in a manner and on a scale commensurate with the needs of the occasion.

"There was much comment on the fact that the German Government 5 per cent notes placed here in March and due to mature next January, are selling now on a 11 per cent annual basis, and the French notes on an 8 per cent.

"Prices of cotton and wheat rose sharply today, but the notable fact in the agricultural situation is that the mid-summer heat of which New York has for a week past been complaining has served to hasten rapidly towards maturity the corn crop, whose growth was lately so retarded as to threaten great damage when the frost comes.

6 MONTHS IN JAIL FOR WOMAN

Justice Sentences Wellston Resident for Disturbing Peace.

Mrs. Elsie Laramie of Wellston was sentenced today to six months imprisonment in the Clayton Jail by Justice Braun of Clayton for disturbing the peace of the neighborhood of Etzel avenue and the Wabash tracks Saturday.

Ten men were arrested with her. They also will be charged with disturbing the peace, and an additional charge of larceny will be placed against five, who are said to have stolen some whisky, which all of them drank and which was one of the causes of the disturbance.

Car Hits Auto, Killing Two.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 13.—Two dead, two probably fatally and one seriously injured, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar S. Thompson, is the result of a collision at a crossing here yesterday between an automobile and an interurban car on the Dallas-Sherman line.

Two Bulldogs Stolen by Burglars.

Harry Foerster of 1704 Russell avenue told the police that burglars entered his home in the absence of the family yesterday and stole two bulldogs valued at $50 each.

Interest in local securities, as reflected today on the St. Louis Stock Exchange, was very close to the minimum. Comparatively few trading proposals were advanced during the session. National Bank of Commerce shares to the number of 20 were sold, this constituting the sale business for the day's session. The first lot of 10 shares went at 97¼, the remaining two transactions, each of 10 shares, showing improvement of half a point.

Sheep	1,500	2,500	1,300
Horses and mules	1,300	1,500	1,500

NATIVE CATTLE—The new week opened with a native run of about 6000 head. These ran largely to grassers and canners. Prime finished beeves were scarce and wanted. Other kinds ruled slow sale, with prices steady to lower. The Government has again quarantined Northern Illinois by reason of foot and mouth disease, but the southern portion of the State, including this market, is free area.

SPECULATIVE COTTON VALUES MOVE TO BULLISH IMPULSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The favorable weather reported in the South and the unsettled political situation inspired some realizing at the opening of the cotton market today, but Liverpool was relatively firm, private crop advices were of a bullish average and, after opening 2 to 5 points higher, the market soon sold 12 to 14 points above Saturday's closing figures. Oct. advanced from 10.15c to 10.25c, while January sold up to 10.76c, with commission houses good buyers.

Liverpool and New Orleans were sellers here early, but New Orleans soon turned firmer and bullish sentiment seemed to be encouraged by predictions of a revival in export trade following the visit here of British and French financiers.

Minneapolis was the market that most highly entertained traders in wheat today. Incidentally, its unusual course upset not a few of them who have been operating in spreads between that market and Chicago. Saturday's close of the Minnesota center showed December 1½c below Chicago, and this was about the difference speculative operators expected to prevail, a margin that afforded good basis for spread. Today, however, the Northwestern market took on a hump that put it 1¼c above Chicago, the high level at each. It was this extraordinary advance that caused no little of the buying at St. Louis and Chicago during the forenoon. All the markets reacted about in unison. The spurt at Minneapolis was left in the main to surmise, which was to the effect that sharp demand for milling purposes found offerings well below seasonable expectations. Weather in that section also furnished more or less bullish fuel.

Corn and oats sagged throughout the session, under limited demand.

The fact that wheat had a substantial advance last week and that prominent market observers voiced the opinion early today that the upward movement had gone far enough for the present, counted for little with St. Louis operators during the morning session. It did have the effect o finducing some selling on the rise that marked the start of trading, but there was not enough of activity on that side to wholly swing the market away from that course. After the first hour trading interest diminished appreciably. It was largely a reflection of strength in the Northwest.

In corn the situation was different, the options in that section displaying no semblance of support and prices easing from the start. December was the most active in that section, but September and May were not wholly neglected by sellers. The current option in oats was a medium for light trade and lost a fraction in value.

Total visible this week: Wheat 8,543,000 bu, against 31,775,000 last week; corn 1,710,000 bu, against 5,654,000; oats 8,147,000 bu, against 23,765,000 last week.

The Canadian wheat visible increased 1,728,000 bu; oats decreased 53,000 bu.

Total clearances of wheat were 551,000 bu; flour, 30,000 bbls; wheat and flour, 686,000 bu; corn, 10,000 bu; oats, 891,000.

Receipts of grain locally were 249,723 bushels wheat, 58,800 bushels corn and 96,900 bushels oats. Hay, 1570 tons.

On ocean passage this week there are reported 20,496,000 bushels wheat (and flour), against 20,240,000 last week. Corn, 23,920,000 bushels this week, against 22,329,000 last week.

Arrivals at Minneapolis over Sunday totaled 1284 cars wheat, against 1326 last year and 924 two years ago. Duluth reported receipts of 1369 cars, against 1291 last year and 1036 two years ago. Winnipeg arrivals were 1182 cars, against 2614 a year ago.

Hill on Supply and Demand.

J. J. Hill was quoted as saying that "a careful estimate shows that total requirements of Europe for the coming year will be about 550,000,000 bushels of wheat. The United States will not have less than 375,000,000 bushels to sell of its big crop. Supply of Canada for export will be fully 177,000,000 bushels and the Argentine 100,000,000. The lowest estimate of the total marketable supply from this continent will be 650,000,000 bushels, or 100,000,000 in excess of the total demand. It is most essential to prosperity of our people that our wheat should get to market and find a purchaser."

Broomhall cabled that the Liverpool market was affected by the steadiness in Winnipeg and light arrivals, with millers absorbing. General undertone was firm. Spot market firm, unchanged to ½d higher. Cargo market firm; winters, 1½d higher, later advancing to 3 d above Saturday. Manitobas 3 to 4½d higher. American shipments were much larger than expected, but the amount to the United Kingdom was small and on passage to the United Kingdom decreased 2,536,000 bushels, with decreasing local stocks when a large increase should be expected. Native wheat is moving slowly and being rapidly absorbed. Corn easy, with liberal arrivals, quiet consumption and increasing stocks with a large floating quantity.

Children Who Have Aided in Succoring the Stricken Babies

ROSE EISMAN, IDA NUDELMAN, FRIEDA KATZ.

MAURICE KOPELOWITZ

NAN KIELY, RUTH KIELY, LEOPOLD MANHEIMER, MARTHA HARRISON, HELEN OSTER,

$850 NEEDED TO COMPLETE YEAR'S WORK FOR BABIES

Amount Raised Last Week Was a Little in Excess of Weekly Average Required.

CONTRIBUTIONS.
Previously acknowledged ...$3654 27

The Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund grew to the extent of $261.35 last week. That was somewhat in excess of the amount suggested a week ago as the weekly average necessary to reach the total raised last year for the benefit of the babies stricken by heat and ailments of the summer season. In round figures, the aggregate it is hoped to attain is $4500, and to do this $845.73 must be forthcoming within four weeks.

The high temperatures prevailing these days are making for intensified distress among the infants in homes of the poor, with their environment not conducive to health. The condition is causing heavy drain upon the relief fund, for both pure milk and for ice, and it is a situation that probably will continue until well into October. Not less than $4500 will be required to provide for the actual and urgent needs of these babies.

The force of children engaged in this season's campaign has been larger than in former years. It has numbered close to 3000, and there have been a greater number of contributions from women and men, but in most instances the girls and boys were unable to equal the sums raised in previous years because of general business conditions. The number of cases requiring succor has been greater also, so that in both respects the year has been out of the ordinary, and unusual endeavor during the ensuing few weeks is called for.

Cheer Up.
When things look black.

SOCIETY

FROM Point-aux-Barques, Mich., comes the news of Mrs. Albert Todd Terry having won the golf championship of the "Point." There were 15 entries, all played from scratch, and many of the contestants were unusually good players.

Mrs. Terry is one of the young matrons of the fashionable social set who has been a golf enthusiast for a long time and one of a coterie that plays at the Country Club.

Mrs. Clifford Blossom of the Kingsbury Apartments and her two small sons, Bransford and Clifford, are home from Wequetonsing, Mich., where they have been all summer.

Mrs. James H. Wear of the Oxford Apartments has arrived from Kennebunkport, Me., where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. G. Herbert Walker, at her summer home.

Mrs. Wear's little granddaughter, Elizabeth Lee Wear, the daughter of Mrs. Holliday Wear, who has been ill with appendicitis at the Roosevelt Hospital in New York, is almost recovered. Mrs. Holliday Wear, who has been passing the summer at Far Rockaway, L. I., will return to Charleston, N. C.

Mrs. Henry Sayles Kilburne, who has been visiting her parents, Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Boyce of 5812 Clemens avenue, will depart the last of the week for Fort Leavenworth, Kan., to join Capt. Kilbourne and stay for a short time before going to San Francisco, thence to the Philippine Islands, where Capt. Kilburne has been ordered.

Mrs. Julia Chenie Cabanne of 5355 Cabanne avenue and her granddaughter, Miss Julie Goode, have returned from Riverside, Mich., where they have been since June.

Mrs. J. D. Perry Frances of 4510 Maryland avenue returned several days ago from Pointe-Aux-Barques, Mich., where she has been visiting her brother, Dr. Ellsworth Smith.

Miss Agnes Cady of 377 North Taylor avenue departed Saturday for New York for a few weeks' study with Calif, the exponent of interpretive dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Tontrup and their daughter, Miss Ella Tontrup, have returned from Northern Wisconsin and are again at the Hamilton Hotel for the winter.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Roy L. McCardell.

Mr. Jarr Learns an Odd Lesson in Frenzied Family Finance.

"I HAVEN'T got a cent," said Mr. Jarr, the other morning. "Can you lend me carfare to get downtown today?"

"I don't see what you do with all your money," said Mrs. Jarr, peevishly.

"I spent it on you. You were out last night, you know," said Mr. Jarr.

"That's right!" exclaimed Mrs. Jarr. "Take me out once and spend a few dollars on me, and then talk about it for the rest of your days! You had more money yesterday than you spent on me twice over—and you know it!"

"Oh, yes, I know it," said Mr. Jarr, wearily. "But if you will remember, I gave you $10 yesterday evening."

"What's the good of giving me money if you take it all away from me again?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "I need so many extra things this week, and there's the gas bill to pay, and the milk bill to pay, and other things."

"Well, I know that," said Mr. Jarr. "That's why I gave you the $10; but it won't hurt you much to give me five cents to get downtown, will it? Today's payday. All I need is five cents to get down to the office."

"I haven't broken that $10 bill yet," grumbled Mrs. Jarr. "And if I break it for you, it will go, and I know it. I try to keep a little money for myself. I want to get a new dress. You know how badly I am off for a new dress. I'm ashamed to go out in the clothes I have."

"I though you wanted the $10 to pay bills with," said Mr. Jarr.

"I can let the bills wait," replied Mrs. Jarr. "It's all the same. If I take this $10 and add a little more to it to get the makings of a dress, I'd still have the money for the dress after I pay last week's bills out of next week's money; don't you see?"

Mr. Jarr couldn't see. He simply said it was getting late, and if he didn't get carfare he couldn't get downtown, that was all. And then a brilliant idea struck him.

"Oh, keep your old $10 bill intact," he remarked. "I can get a nickel out of the children's bank."

"I don't think there's anything in the bank," said Mrs. Jarr. "I needed a little change myself the other day and I opened the bank and there was only 30 cents in it."

"Why was there only 30 cents in it?" asked Mr. Jarr quickly. "You know we resolved we would at least put each 10 cents a day in the bank and then when there was $3 in it we would put it in the savings bank for the children. I know I put 10 cents in it every day. You said you would, too."

"That's all right for people with plenty of money," said Mrs. Jarr, "but when the laundryman comes with your shirts and collars and says they're 60 cents, and he can't leave the things, I've got to get the money somewhere, haven't I? So you see if I did take the money out of the children's bank it wasn't to spend it on myself."

"Maybe Gertrude has 5 cents. We paid her last week," said Mr. Jarr.

"I'm sure she hasn't," said Mrs. Jarr. "Some things came C. O. D. the other day and I hadn't the money to pay for them, and Gertrude let me have it."

"But do you think that's the right thing to do?" asked Mr. Jarr. "We are simply in the position we were before. The girl's wages are not paid and I don't want them to run up!"

"Oh, I guess Gertrude and I can manage our own affairs," cried Mrs. Jarr. "I don't see why you interfere! Gertrude has been paid. We don't owe her a cent till her month is up. The fact that I borrowed some money from her is simply a personal matter. It's got nothing to do with her wages at all! THEY'RE paid."

Against this feminine logic Mr. Jarr knew it was useless to argue.

"Besides," said Mrs. Jarr, with an air of triumph, seeing him hesitate, "the things I got were kitchenware and some dishes and glasses; and as Gertrude broke the old ones, it's only right she should lend me the money to pay for the new ones!"

"I'll go shake the kid's bank. Maybe you overlooked a bet," said Mr. Jarr.

He was shaking the bank when little Willie Jarr came into the bedroom.

"There ain't no money in it, paw," he said. "I don't put any more in it because maw takes it out if I do. I keep my money."

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell You This as a New One.

I'VE got to write my best girl a letter."

"Why not send her a postal card?"

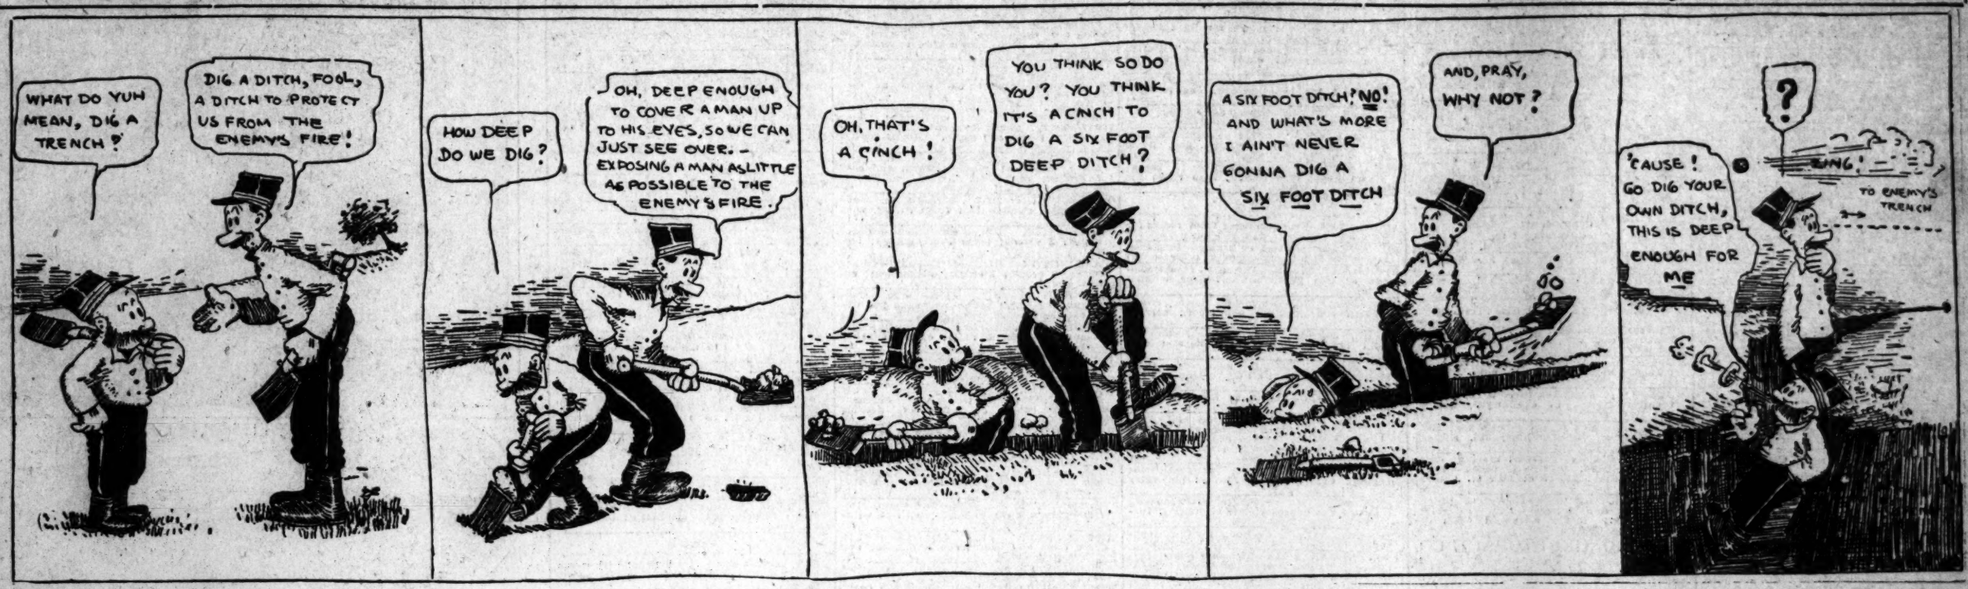

"No. She'd think I don't care 2 cents for her."

BEWARE THE SPOTLIGHT

LUELLA SIMPKINS had a chance to marry Henry Brown. Luella thought a lot of him, and yet she turned him down. "I mean to be an actress on the stage," she said to Hen. "Me marry? Well, I reckon not. What use have I for men?" She wrote a play, called "Oh, You Kid," and staged it for the Guild. Luella took the leading role, and ev'ry one was thrilled. The gate receipts encouraged her; they footed 28. The Pippville Bee came out next day and said the girl was great.

Poor Henry wandered from the town and went to Kankakee. He didn't care what happened—that was very plain to see. He got a job in Johnson's store and, as the days went by, the world grew brighter and he bought a red and yellow tie.

Luella got her chance at last. She joined a little troupe and got as far as Kankake and landed in the soup. Of course that's just a bit of slang. The show went broke, we mean. That night Luella had no place to rest her aching bean. 'Twas Saturday, and trade was good. The stores were open late. At 9 o'clock the girl was shoved in Johnson's shop by Fate. She saw a red and yellow tie—the only one in town. "Well, I'll be pickled," muttered she, "if that ain't Henry Brown!"

Five years have passed. Their married life has failed to pan out well. Luella's washing dishes in a Baltimore hotel. Poor Henry robbed a bank and now his home's an iron cage. The moral here is very plain—girls, don't go on the stage.

NOT all of us are cowards as long as there are a few of us brave enough to rise up in a highbrow gathering and brand Omar Khayyam as punk stuff.

What About Breakfast?

"CALL me early!" ordered the fat man.

"To catch a train?" inquired the hotel clerk.

"What else? You don't imagine, do you, that I'm to be Queen of the May—and in September, too!"
